Aviophobia

What is Fear of Flying (Aviophobia)?

Having a fear of flying (otherwise known as Aviophobia) can be extremely difficult and restricting. The world is becoming closer with the convenience of internet, telephones and air-travel, and in many circumstances flying is becoming a modern-day necessity. Close relatives immigrate, business opportunities demand travel to far off places and the wonders of the world are only a plane ticket and a few hours away.

While many people experience mild anxiety before a flight, those with Aviophobia experience overwhelming symptoms of stress and anxiety which commonly affect their functioning.

Fear of Flying is a specific phobia that affects millions of people worldwide. Fortunately there are various treatment options that can help conquer the fear that is keeping you grounded.

Symptoms of Aviophobia

A person with a fear of flying feels intense anxiety at even the thought of having to travel by air and will usually avoid it at all costs. In some cases, when a flight is unavoidable, a person with Aviophobia will endure the flight with an overwhelming sense of nervousness, possibly even experiencing a panic attack. Other common symptoms expressed are:

- Nausea, vomiting and motion sickness
- Dizziness or a feeling of 'falling'
- Sweating
- Muscle tension
- Heavy breathing
- Increased heart rate or palpitations
- Shaking or trembling

Diagnosing Aviophobia

If your fear of flying has reached phobic proportions, it is a good idea to make an appointment with a psychologist. The psychologist will offer fear of flying advice and assess you by asking about your fear, how it started, the severity of your fear reactions and how it affects your life. Professional fear of flying advice will give you another perspective on overcoming fear of flying.

Phobias often occur along with other disorders, so a psychologist will also try to rule out other problems such as another category of anxiety disorder, depression or substance abuse before a diagnosis of specific Phobia is made.

What Causes Fear of Flying?

The causes of fear of flying are vast and differ between people. Sometimes it is due to a bad past experience such as mid-air turbulence, or loss of a loved one in a plane crash.

Overcoming fear of flying is also difficult because hearing horrific news stories or T.V. programs of plane crashes may be enough to develop a phobia. Many people have developed a fear of flying after the 9/11 terror attacks in the USA.

Additional Fears Behind Aviophobia

- Small enclosed spaces (claustrophobia)
- Heights
- The dangers of turbulence
- The risk of crashing
- Flying over water
- Relinquishing all control to the unseen, unknown pilots at the front of the plane
- Depending on the unknown mechanics of a machine for your safety
- Fear of having a panic attack
- Fear of possible terrorism
- Motion sickness
- Taking off, or landing

Sometimes this anxiety can be traced back to the fear of the unknown and a lack of information. Many people feel anxious because they feel physical sensations, such as a loss of balance as the plane dips.

Others might hear noises that they do not understand and think this may be a sign of danger, when in fact these are normal and to be expected on any flight.

Help for Fear of Flying

Overcoming fear of flying can be done. There are a number of treatment options for someone suffering from this or any other fear, including drug therapy, natural remedies, Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT), relaxation techniques and airline affiliated programs. Explore your options and find which would be best for you by seeking the fear of flying advice you need.

Treatment Options for Aviophobia

Drug Therapy

Psychiatric medication such as benzodiazepines or other relaxant drugs are sometimes prescribed to temporarily control symptoms of Aviophobia. However it must be kept in mind that drug treatments do not treat the underlying disorder and may cause unwanted side-effects. Always remember to “test-out” any medication on the ground where medical supervision is at hand, to ensure you don’t have any adverse reactions – as this is not something you only want to

Natural Herbal and Homeopathic Remedies

Certain natural remedies may be taken to help control the anxiety associated with flying. Herbs such as Hypericum perforatum (St John's Wort), Passiflora incarnata, Scutellaria laterifolia (Scullcap) and Valerian are often recommended for anxiety and will help to calm the nerves and relax the mind during your flight. There are also excellent herbal and homeopathic remedies for travel sickness. As with any other phobia, a holistic approach using a combination of treatments will prove to be most successful.

Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT)

Desensitization is one of the more commonly used methods in treating fear of flying. This will entail gradually facing the idea of flying, starting with simply talking about it, or visiting an airport, to eventually taking a flight. You will be taught relaxation methods and coping techniques to combat your phobia.

Relaxation Techniques

Meditation, deep breathing and muscle relaxation techniques can help reduce your anxiety during flights. Practice these at home first so that they can be easily applied when you need them. Especially composed CD's can help to reduce anxiety, relieve tension, take your mind off things and regulate breathing during the flight.

Airline-Affiliated Programs

Many Airlines now offer special programs to help people overcome their fear of flying. These may include desensitization sessions where you can actually board the plane without taking off, information provision so that you understand more about the workings of planes and what can be expected, as well as other coping strategies that have been successful for others.

Tips for Coping with Fear of Flying

- Get informed! The more you understand about flying, turbulence, and the statistical risk of flying, the more you will realize that there is little to fear. Statistically, flying is the safest form of travel.
- Try and figure out what scares you about flying and then address that problem. Most often it's another underlying fear that needs to be dealt with such as a fear of panic attacks or claustrophobia.
- During a flight, try keeping your mind occupied so that you don't think catastrophic thoughts about what can go wrong. Take along magazines or make use of the on-flight entertainment and watch a movie – or you can consider flying at night, when it is less disorientating.
- Introduce yourself to your pilot and inform the air hostesses of your fear. You may find comfort in meeting and seeing the confidence of the people that you are entrusting your safety to.
- Avoid stimulants such as sugar or coffee on the day of the flight. These may increase the symptoms of your anxiety.
- Get to the airport early. Feeling rushed will make you feel more anxious by the time you board the flight.
- Try not to use alcohol to relax you. Because of the difference in altitude, it may have a greater effect on you than you'd hoped to which may make you feel more out of control.

- Book a seat near the front of the aircraft as the turbulence is less noticeable there. If you do experience turbulence, don't tense up. Rather try relaxing your body and going with the flow. Turbulence is very common during flights and is not a cause for alarm.

The Natural Approach

While Western medicine has become the norm in many cultures, it is not the only treatment option. Conventional western medicine, often called allopathic medicine, is the system of medicine taught at most medical schools and most pharmaceutical and synthetic medicines are manufactured and marketed according to the principles of allopathic medicine. Allopathic medicine is also sometimes called orthodox medicine.

Because most of us in the Western world have grown up in a society in which allopathic medicine is the prevailing norm, we forget that, only a few decades ago, homeopathic, herbal and other natural medicines were commonly available – and freely used even by conventional doctors. While there are often heated debates about which system of medicine is 'better' than the other, many responsible doctors (whether they are allopathic or not) recognize that both have a role to play in the treatment program.

Natural medicine has often been frowned on by conventional doctors, especially by those who did not have sufficient knowledge of these medicines. However, it is encouraging to note that some medical schools are now beginning to re-introduce it into their course work, thereby providing doctors with a wider range of treatment options from which to choose. In many countries, especially in Europe, India and China, natural and homeopathic medicines are commonly prescribed by conventional doctors and represent a significant part of the total annual drug sales.

Naturopathy is a branch of medicine (just as allopathy is a branch of medicine) which operates according to the underlying philosophy that the body has an innate capacity to heal itself. While natural medicines are often called 'alternative' or 'complimentary' medicines, they are, in fact, a unique and independent form of medicine in their own right, well able to treat a variety of conditions. Perhaps the term 'holistic' medicine is more apt, given the broad range of treatment options and approaches which are to be found within the practice of natural medicine, which encompasses many different disciplines, including herbalism, homeopathy, iridology, osteopathy, chiropractic, therapeutic massage techniques, aromatherapy, acupuncture and many, many more.

Most naturopaths will use a variety of treatment modalities in order to treat their patients in a holistic way to support health, relieve symptoms and prevent future disease. In fact, even the World Health Organization defines health as being "... more than simply the absence of illness. It is the active state of physical, emotional, mental and social well-being." This is a wonderfully clear description of holistic or natural medicine, which strives to support health (thereby relieving or preventing symptoms), rather than simply eliminating disease.

Although allopathic medicine certainly has a role to play and has made a tremendous contribution to medical science during the past century, there is a growing perception that it is not the only answer and that, in many cases, holistic medicine can accomplish just as much, if not more – without the risk of side effects, addiction and sacrifice to health so commonly associated with pharmaceutical drugs. Contrary to common perception, and provided that they are manufactured in the correct way, natural medicines can work quickly and safely to promote healing.

In many cases, they can succeed where pharmaceutical drugs have failed. Despite frequent reports that they are ‘unproven’ and ‘untested’, the opposite is true. Natural medicines have a long history of usage and there is a wealth of empirical evidence to support their effectiveness and safety. In addition, active clinical research is carried out by many academic hospitals and universities to support the extensive traditional and empirical evidence behind natural medicines.

It is also important to know that, like any medicine, herbal and homeopathic medicines must be manufactured in the correct way, following acceptable procedures and manufacturing methods to ensure maximum effectiveness and safety. Due to the recent rise in popularity of natural remedies, many companies have sprung up to take advantage of the market. Unfortunately not all of them are equipped to manufacture to the correct standards, often resulting in a flood of inferior (and sometimes even unsafe) remedies onto the market – and giving natural remedies a bad name.

Even some pharmaceutical companies have rushed to claim their market share by producing so-called ‘standardized’ extracts of herbs and offering these as superior to the tried and tested methods of naturopathic manufacturing. Nothing could be further from the truth. While ‘standardized’ extracts may offer benefit of easy consistency of dosage (and cheaper more efficient production lines), they have grave disadvantages. These include an increase in side effects as the medicines produced in this manner lose the natural protective properties of the herbs. In some cases, these side effects have proved fatal – as was seen in the liver toxicity associated with standardized extracts of kava kava, a herb previously safely used for generations without any known side effects.

Most naturopaths recommend what is called the Full Spectrum Method of extraction – which retains the benefits of ALL the active ingredients within the herb as opposed to isolating only one – thereby providing a more complete treatment as well as superior protection against side effects.

Whatever your choice, always choose wisely. Research what is best for you. If you have a chronic or life threatening condition, don’t make changes without first discussing them with your doctor in order that your condition may be monitored. Well informed and supportive practitioners will support patients who want to take responsibility for their own health.

In the treatment of depression, the following herbal and homeopathic remedies are often used as part of the treatment plan.

Nerve Tonic: Promotes nervous system health, maintains balanced mood and worry free mind.

Triple Complex Nerve Tonic is a combination of three, cell-supporting tissue salts, especially selected for their effect on brain and nervous system health. This combination of tissue salts can be used regularly in a general capacity to promote systemic balance in the brain, spinal cord and the entire nervous system, as well as in conjunction with other remedies to maintain therapeutic effectiveness.

Tissue Salts, also called cell salts or biochemic salts, are composed of minerals that occur naturally at a cellular level in our bodies and all organic matter on earth (plants, rocks and soil).

There have been twelve essential tissue salts identified as important components of all body cells and without which, true health is not possible. Each tissue salt plays a different, yet vital role in maintaining cellular health in the organs and nervous systems of the body.

Ensuring the healthy functioning of all brain and nervous system cells enhances the bio-availability of supplements, remedies and even nutrients in your diet. It also lessens the chance of a nervous breakdown. Treating panic disorder in people who suffer a nervous breakdown usually involves therapy. The doctor treating panic disorder will monitor the symptoms carefully to establish a treatment plan that aims to restore the health of the nervous system.

And, because our tissue salts are naturally occurring in the body and manufactured to ensure safe, yet optimum potency, they are safe to use for all ages, as well as during pregnancy.

Common Questions Asked About Holistic Health Distance Learning Courses:

What is Certification?

Most schools will offer an exam that tests the student's knowledge of the material taught in the respective course. Upon successful completion of this exam, a Certificate or Diploma will be issued by the school attesting that the student has successfully met the requirements as specified by that school. The only governmental recognition of Aromatherapy in North America is the occupational title designation granted to the BCAA under the Societies Act of British Columbia.

What is a Certified Aromatherapist or Reflexologist?

Most prospective students want to know whether taking our courses will lead to their becoming 'Certified' in that healing modality, thereby leading to the title of Certified Aromatherapist, Certified Reflexologist or Certified Color/Crystal Therapist. The answer to this really depends on what you mean by 'Certified.' We believe it can be misleading to purport that completing a course in a healing modality such as reflexology, aromatherapy or color/crystal therapy will lead to a designation of 'Certified' Therapist. These are not official title designations nor are they ones which are recognized by any country's governmental body. All that these titles mean is that this is what an Individual Instructor, School or Institution decided to put on the Diploma it awards those who successfully complete their course.

What is an accredited course in Aromatherapy or Reflexology?

The answer to this will depend on who you are asking. At the present time, British Columbia is the only government to recognize Aromatherapy as a distinct profession and has granted Occupational Title Protection to the members of the BCAA (British Columbia Alliance of Aromatherapy) with the exclusive right for its members to call themselves Registered Aromatherapists (R.A.).

At this time, neither Reflexology nor Color/Crystal Therapy have such occupational designations in any country although one prominent Reflexology school in Colorado, The Modern Institute of Reflexology, has gained occupational designation for their institution in that state. MIR has been designated by the Colorado State Division of Private Occupational Schools - Dept. of Higher Education as an approved school. Our Reflexologist who developed the reflexology modules for our courses was trained at MIR as a Certified Reflexologist, a Master Reflexologist and a Dr. of Reflexology.

In the United States, the NAHA (National Association for Holistic Aromatherapy) has put into place their Approved Standards for Aromatherapy Training. The Alternative Healing Academy's Advanced Aromatherapy course meets and exceeds these standards and we are in the application process of becoming an approved program through the NAHA.

In Canada, there are a number of different Associations including the BCAPA (British Columbia Association of Practicing Aromatherapists) and the CFA (Canadian Federation of Aromatherapists). Time will tell if one authoritative body or association becomes the standard by which to judge and govern the educational offerings of these alternative healing modalities.

It has to be noted that NO form of aromatherapy "certification" is currently recognized in the USA by anyone other than those in the trade, nor is aromatherapy (or essential oils in the aromatherapy trade) regulated by any governmental body.

Some information about the courses we offer:

1) You can receive the course in one of two ways: A cd with the modules and tests in PDF format can be shipped to you; or, The modules can be emailed to you three at a time. Each time you complete the tests for the current three modules, a new set of three modules will be emailed to you.

2) All modules are clearly explained, are in pdf format and fully illustrated.

3) The Advanced Aromatherapy Practitioner and the Advanced Reflexology Practitioner courses are designed to meet the National Association for Holistic Aromatherapy (NAHA) guidelines.

4) A tutor will be available via email to answer any questions you may have.

You will be contacted after purchase to find out how you would like your course delivered. All tests for the course can be either emailed or snail-mailed to The Alternative Healing Academy.

Upon successful completion of any full diploma or certification course (with a score of 80% or higher), you will receive a beautiful Diploma, suitable for framing.

Course Testimonials

"I'm done! Going through the final and the case studies and having such amazing experiences and opportunities to help people, I truly feel blessed and honored to have had the intense education that came with this course. I discovered in me a new ability to serve others, not only through education but through the power of healing that comes with the use of essential oils. I am continuing to train personally with Alexandria Brighton and have begun work toward opening an aromatherapy practice. Thank you so much for your patience and knowledge. Most of all thank you for this new way of living and enjoying Life."

-A. Lindquist - Advanced Aromatherapy Practitioner

"I am finding the course great. It is written very well so even people like me can understand the human body a whole lot better. I just hope that I can remember it all. I don't think I have a chance of remembering the names of everything in the muscular system or the movement system. But, I do have more of an understanding of how everything works now. I find it just amazing. Thanks Heaps."

-M. Oliver - Basic Anatomy & Physiology

"This information is great that you are teaching. I would really like to talk my oldest daughter into taking your course. It really goes into detail which is very informative."

-Debbie F. - Basic Reflexology

"Seven years ago I started to see a reflexologist for migraines and sinus problems. I was amazed that I finally found relief without medication. I decided this year to search out a course in reflexology so I could help family and friends and show them the benefits of reflexology. I researched various courses on the internet and decided to go with the basic course through the Alternative Healing Academy. I was impressed with course material and the ease of receiving the course material."

"I was given an choice of having a CD sent to me or to receiving and sending back the assignments through email. I choose email. I received 3 lessons at a time that I could read and study on my own time frame and return the lessons when I was done. Everything was sent in a very timely manner and communication was open and quick. If I needed help, I knew it was only a click away and the response time was very quick. The techniques used also came in a video mode in the email that I could replay as much as I needed to."

"I felt I learned a lot and am able to help myself and others. Being able to log 20 hours of treatment time and writing the case histories for the final exam was extremely rewarding and helpful. I would recommend this course to others interested in reflexology because the course material was very informative and complete and written in easy to understand language."

-Jean Russell - Basic Reflexology Course

"I'm so excited about (the Advanced Aromatherapy course) and I'm particularly excited about the possibility of making custom blends for people! I hadn't anticipated having that opportunity when I took the course so I'm excited to have everything done! I'm very excited to have finished. I really enjoyed this course and really appreciate all the work you've put into it! This has been a fabulous jumping off point for me and I'm so glad I took it."

"p.s. I know the boys are much slower at the Reflexology, but my son is loving the classes."
