Narcolepsy

What is Narcolepsy?

Narcolepsy is a chronic neurological disorder that causes excessive sleepiness without warning and at inappropriate times. When a person has Narcolepsy, the brain is unable to regulate the sleep-wake cycles normally. Numerous factors contribute to sleep disturbances and neurological dysfunction. As a result, both daytime and night-time sleep attacks occur.

During the day, people with narcolepsy can experience sleep attacks repeatedly. This causes them to fall asleep suddenly and without warning, while at night, their sleep is disturbed and they wake up frequently.

There are two main types of sleep: rapid eye movement (REM) sleep and non rapid eye movement (NREM) sleep. For people without sleep disorders, during REM, the body becomes immobile and conscious thinking 'paralysis' occurs.

Your eyes move quickly in different directions even though your eyelids are closed and intense dreaming occurs. When people fall asleep, they usually have NREM sleep first, followed by REM sleep. People suffering from narcolepsy fall into REM before NREM sleep and they may be either asleep or awake.

People who suffer from narcolepsy are a safety hazard to themselves and to others. It is hard to imagine what life must be for a narcoleptic, difficult, dangerous, embarrassing and definitely frustrating.

A narcoleptic will doze off in the train and miss his or her stop, fall asleep in the bathtub with potentially dangerous consequences, or have to be shaken awake by the dentist so that a dental procedure may occur. They fall asleep while driving, doing their jobs, socializing with friends and family, or even eating. People with Narcolepsy are often on the verge of unconsciousness.

Narcolepsy can occur in men, women, children and the elderly. Signs and symptoms of narcolepsy usually develop during adolescence, but can also appear in children as young as ten years old, as well as in adults. Sometimes narcolepsy can go undiagnosed for several years, and be mistakenly diagnosed as laziness, lack of sleep, depression or a seizure disorder.

Children suffering from narcolepsy are often thought to have some type of learning disorder or seizure disorder such as epilepsy. Their ability to study, focus and remember becomes severely affected. This leads to depression, a decreased immune response, stress, poor work performance and interpersonal problems with teachers and their peers. Some children have even been misdiagnosed with hyperactivity. When they are tired, they tend to do their work or activities in a hurry rather than slow down. If your child displays symptoms of narcolepsy, it is best that they receive medical care immediately.

Although narcolepsy is a lifelong condition, symptoms will improve with ongoing treatment so that people are able to lead more productive lives.

Diagnosing Narcolepsy

A diagnosis of narcolepsy is based on the patient's symptoms, physical exam and family history of narcolepsy. The doctor may refer the patient to a sleep specialist for observation and evaluation of sleeping patterns. Some sleep tests require that the patient stays over at a sleep centre.

Diagnostic methods used to determine narcolepsy include:

Epworth Sleepiness Scale: This sleep questionnaire consists of questions that have to be ranked on a numbered scale by the patient. An example would be: "Do certain situations make you feel sleepy?"

Nocturnal polysomnogram: This test measures the electrical activity of the brain (electroencephalogram) and heart (electrocardiogram), the movements of muscles (electromyogram) and eyes (electroculogram) as well as respirations (oral thermistor or nasal pressure transducer) during sleep.

Multiple sleep latency test (MSLT): This test measures how long it takes to fall asleep during the day. The patient is asked to take short naps every two hours and sleep specialists observe sleeping patterns.

Hypocretin Test: This test measures the levels of hypocretin in the fluid that surrounds the spinal cord. A low level of hypocretin can indicate that you have narcolepsy, although this is not always the case.

Narcolepsy is characterized by the following symptoms:

- Excessive daytime sleepiness: People with narcolepsy experience sudden, overwhelming urges to sleep during the day. This uncontrollable need to sleep occurs anywhere and at anytime.
- Cataplexy: This is the sudden, temporary loss of muscle tone often triggered by intense emotions such as laughter, excitement, fear or anger. Muscles become completely weak which causes physical changes such as slurred speech, knees buckling or your head drooping uncontrollably. Approximately 70% of people with narcolepsy experience cataplexy.
- Hallucinations: Hallucinations are referred to as hypnagogic hallucinations and are described as vivid dreamlike experiences occurring while falling asleep or upon awakening. This hallucination occurs when a person falls instantly into REM sleep (rapid eye movement is the period of sleep when most dreaming occurs). When the person starts dreaming, it is most likely he or she is semi-awake, and the dream is experienced as being very real. These dreams may therefore be exceptionally vivid or terrifying.
- Sleep paralysis: Paralysis occurs upon falling asleep or awakening. A person with narcolepsy is unable to move or speak for a few minutes, while falling asleep or upon waking up. This sleep paralysis that usually occurs during REM sleep may prevent the body from experiencing the ability to dream. Sleep paralysis is generally experienced in young adulthood.
- Automatic Behavior: During sleep episodes, a person suffering from narcolepsy will perform functions and activities such as talking, walking or putting things away without being aware that he or she is actually doing them.

What Causes Narcolepsy?

The cause of narcolepsy is not exactly known, but research suggests that it could be as a result of the lack of the chemical called hypocretin in the brain, especially when cataplexy is also present.

Hypocretin stimulates the brain cells and promotes a state of wakefulness. There are factors that may contribute to the lack of hypocretin in the brain and they include infection, autoimmune reaction, stress or hormonal changes.

Help for Narcolepsy

Narcolepsy is a chronic and lifelong condition, but symptoms can be managed and controlled. One should keep in mind that each person is different, and their response to treatment will depend on the severity of their symptoms. Certain medications, lifestyle changes and alternative therapies have proven effective in reducing the frequency of narcoleptic episodes.

Often symptoms are severe, and narcolepsy becomes so frustrating, that people immediately turn to conventional medication to relieve symptoms. It is also important to control symptoms to prevent the potential dangers involved in sudden attacks of sleepiness.

Medications used primarily to treat narcolepsy include stimulants and antidepressants. Although these medications can help to control the symptoms to varying degrees, they do not address the underlying cause and may cause unwanted side effects.

Natural treatments can be used in conjunction with conventional medicine or as an alternative and may offer people a safer and all-natural option to promote optimal health and longevity. Natural remedies focus on improving symptoms and can also help to support one's physical, mental and emotional health.

A combination of herbal and homeopathic treatments with beneficial ingredients such as Hypericum perforatum, Schizandra chinesis, Calcium lactate, Magnesium lactate and Vitamin B6 can provide relief for narcoleptics. By incorporating natural remedies into your treatment plan, you will be able to maintain regular sleeping patterns and improve your quality of life. It is important not to stop your prescription medication without consulting your doctor or seeking the supervision of a complimentary health practitioner or homeopath.

A holistic approach

By opting for a more holistic approach, natural and alternative treatments can complement conventional medicine. Complementary therapies and other treatment modalities to consider including in the treatment program are:

- Counseling and psychotherapy
- Homeopathy

It is also important to remember that eating healthily and exercising on a regular basis helps to improve the quality of a person's sleep and relieves the stresses of daily life.

People who are suffering from narcolepsy can incorporate lifestyle changes which will help them manage this condition.

Tips to manage Narcolepsy

- Establish a structured sleeping routine by maintaining a sleeping and rising time as well as having daytime naps.
- Have access to family, marriage and occupational counseling.
- Avoid caffeine, alcohol and nicotine especially during the afternoon and at night.
- Join a support group.
- Be responsible – don't drive or handle hazardous equipment if you feel sleepy
- Spend time outdoors after waking up as this regulates the body's biological clock.
- Ensure that your sleeping environment is peaceful and comfortable, and is used primarily for sleeping.
- Keep a sleep journal to jot down your sleeping patterns and habits.
- Carry a tape recorder with you to record important conversations that you may forget when you feel sleepy.
- Practice visualization and relaxation techniques to assist in sleeping better.
- Reduce stress and maintain an even mood to prevent bringing on a narcolepsy attack

Treatment of the future?

Because the number of people with narcolepsy is relatively low and the 'market' is therefore small, medical research into more permanent cures is not high on the list of priorities for the pharmaceutical companies. However, possible areas of research include stem cell therapy as well as a synthetic form of hypocretin.

The Natural Approach

While Western medicine has become the norm in many cultures, it is not the only treatment option. Conventional western medicine, often called allopathic medicine, is the system of medicine taught at most medical schools and most pharmaceutical and synthetic medicines are manufactured and marketed according to the principles of allopathic medicine. Allopathic medicine is also sometimes called orthodox medicine.

Because most of us in the Western world have grown up in a society in which allopathic medicine is the prevailing norm, we forget that, only a few decades ago, homeopathic, herbal and other natural medicines were commonly available – and freely used even by conventional doctors. While there are often heated debates about which system of medicine is 'better' than the other, many responsible doctors (whether they are allopathic or not) recognize that both have a role to play in the treatment program.

Natural medicine has often been frowned on by conventional doctors, especially by those who did not have sufficient knowledge of these medicines. However, it is encouraging to note that some medical schools are now beginning to re-introduce it into their course work, thereby providing doctors with a wider range of treatment options from which to choose. In many countries, especially in Europe, India and China, natural and homeopathic medicines are commonly prescribed by conventional doctors and represent a significant part of the total annual drug sales.

Naturopathy is a branch of medicine (just as allopathy is a branch of medicine) which operates according to the underlying philosophy that the body has an innate capacity to heal itself. While natural medicines are often called 'alternative' or 'complimentary' medicines, they are, in fact, a unique and independent form of medicine in their own right, well able to treat a variety of conditions. Perhaps the term 'holistic' medicine is more apt, given the broad range of treatment options and approaches which are to be found within the practice of natural medicine, which encompasses many different disciplines, including herbalism, homeopathy, iridology, osteopathy, chiropractic, therapeutic massage techniques, aromatherapy, acupuncture and many, many more.

Most naturopaths will use a variety of treatment modalities in order to treat their patients in a holistic way to support health, relieve symptoms and prevent future disease. In fact, even the World Health Organization defines health as being "... more than simply the absence of illness. It is the active state of physical, emotional, mental and social well-being." This is a wonderfully clear description of holistic or natural medicine, which strives to support health (thereby relieving or preventing symptoms), rather than simply eliminating disease.

Although allopathic medicine certainly has a role to play and has made a tremendous contribution to medical science during the past century, there is a growing perception that it is not the only answer and that, in many cases, holistic medicine can accomplish just as much, if not more – without the risk of side effects, addiction and sacrifice to health so commonly associated with pharmaceutical drugs. Contrary to common perception, and provided that they are manufactured in the correct way, natural medicines can work quickly and safely to promote healing.

In many cases, they can succeed where pharmaceutical drugs have failed. Despite frequent reports that they are 'unproven' and 'untested', the opposite is true. Natural medicines have a long history of usage and there is a wealth of empirical evidence to support their effectiveness and safety. In addition, active clinical research is carried out by many academic hospitals and universities to support the extensive traditional and empirical evidence behind natural medicines.

It is also important to know that, like any medicine, herbal and homeopathic medicines must be manufactured in the correct way, following acceptable procedures and manufacturing methods to ensure maximum effectiveness and safety. Due to the recent rise in popularity of natural remedies, many companies have sprung up to take advantage of the market. Unfortunately not all of them are equipped to manufacture to the correct standards, often resulting in a flood of inferior (and sometimes even unsafe) remedies onto the market – and giving natural remedies a bad name.

Six Good Reasons to choose Native Remedies as your trusted suppliers of herbal & homeopathic remedies:

1) All Native Remedies products are manufactured according to the highest pharmaceutical standards - using only the best quality raw ingredients from nature's medicine chest.

2) Native Remedies and our suppliers are registered with the FDA as accredited suppliers and manufacturers of health supplements. Our products are sold all over the world and are manufactured to strict international standards in a GMP accredited manufacturing plant.

3) All our remedies are manufactured in an FDA registered pharmaceutical facility under close supervision.

This includes formulation, acquiring and testing of raw ingredients as well as final manufacturing. This gives us the confidence to say that when you are buying a Native Remedies product, you are buying the safest and the best! We know what goes into our remedies - which is why we know what you will get out of them!

4) Manufacturing is done strictly according to the principles of GMP (Good Manufacturing Practice) and all raw ingredients undergo stringent testing before being approved by our registered manufacturing pharmacists.

5) We offer a free email Ask Our Experts service run by trained consultants ready to advise you on the best choice for your health.

6) We offer an unconditional One Year Money Back Guarantee.

Even some pharmaceutical companies have rushed to claim their market share by producing so-called 'standardized' extracts of herbs and offering these as superior to the tried and tested methods of naturopathic manufacturing. Nothing could be further from the truth. While 'standardized' extracts may offer benefit of easy consistency of dosage (and cheaper more efficient production lines), they have grave disadvantages. These include an increase in side effects as the medicines produced in this manner lose the natural protective properties of the herbs. In some cases, these side effects have proved fatal – as was seen in the liver toxicity associated with standardized extracts of kava kava, a herb previously safely used for generations without any known side effects.

Most naturopaths recommend what is called the Full Spectrum Method of extraction – which retains the benefits of ALL the active ingredients within the herb as opposed to isolating only one – thereby providing a more complete treatment as well as superior protection against side effects.

Whatever your choice, always choose wisely. Research what is best for you. If you have a chronic or life threatening condition, don't make changes without first discussing them with your doctor in order that your condition may be monitored. Well informed and supportive practitioners will support patients who want to take responsibility for their own health.

Common Questions Asked About Holistic Health Distance Learning Courses:

What is Certification?

Most schools will offer an exam that tests the student's knowledge of the material taught in the respective course. Upon successful completion of this exam, a Certificate or Diploma will be issued by the school attesting that the student has successfully met the requirements as specified by that school. The only governmental recognition of Aromatherapy in North America is the occupational title designation granted to the BCAA under the Societies Act of British Columbia.

What is a Certified Aromatherapist or Reflexologist?

Most prospective students want to know whether taking our courses will lead to their becoming 'Certified' in that healing modality, thereby leading to the title of Certified Aromatherapist, Certified Reflexologist or Certified Color/Crystal Therapist. The answer to this really depends on what you mean by 'Certified.' We believe it can be misleading to purport that completing a course in a healing modality such as reflexology, aromatherapy or color/crystal therapy will lead to a designation of 'Certified' Therapist. These are not official title designations nor are they ones which are recognized by any country's governmental body. All that these titles mean is that this is what an Individual Instructor, School or Institution decided to put on the Diploma it awards those who successfully complete their course.

What is an accredited course in Aromatherapy or Reflexology?

The answer to this will depend on who you are asking. At the present time, British Columbia is the only government to recognize Aromatherapy as a distinct profession and has granted Occupational Title Protection to the members of the BCAA (British Columbia Alliance of Aromatherapy) with the exclusive right for its members to call themselves Registered Aromatherapists (R.A.).

At this time, neither Reflexology nor Color/Crystal Therapy have such occupational designations in any country although one prominent Reflexology school in Colorado, The Modern Institute of Reflexology, has gained occupational designation for their institution in that state. MIR has been designated by the Colorado State Division of Private Occupational Schools - Dept. of Higher Education as an approved school. Our Reflexologist who developed the reflexology modules for our courses was trained at MIR as a Certified Reflexologist, a Master Reflexologist and a Dr. of Reflexology.

In the United States, the NAHA (National Association for Holistic Aromatherapy) has put into place their Approved Standards for Aromatherapy Training. The Alternative Healing Academy's Advanced Aromatherapy course meets and exceeds these standards and we are in the application process of becoming an approved program through the NAHA.

In Canada, there are a number of different Associations including the BCAPA (British Columbia Association of Practicing Aromatherapists) and the CFA (Canadian Federation of Aromatherapists). Time will tell if one authoritative body or association becomes the standard by which to judge and govern the educational offerings of these alternative healing modalities.

It has to be noted that NO form of aromatherapy "certification" is currently recognized in the USA by anyone other than those in the trade, nor is aromatherapy (or essential oils in the aromatherapy trade) regulated by any governmental body.

Some information about the courses we offer:

1) You can receive the course in one of two ways: A cd with the modules and tests in PDF format can be shipped to you; or, The modules can be emailed to you three at a time. Each time you complete the tests for the current three modules, a new set of three modules will be emailed to you.

2) All modules are clearly explained, are in pdf format and fully illustrated.

3) The Advanced Aromatherapy Practitioner and the Advanced Reflexology Practitioner courses are designed to meet the National Association for Holistic Aromatherapy (NAHA) guidelines.

4) A tutor will be available via email to answer any questions you may have.

You will be contacted after purchase to find out how you would like your course delivered. All tests for the course can be either emailed or snail-mailed to The Alternative Healing Academy.

Upon successful completion of any full diploma or certification course (with a score of 80% or higher), you will receive a beautiful Diploma, suitable for framing.

Course Testimonials

"I'm done! Going through the final and the case studies and having such amazing experiences and opportunities to help people, I truly feel blessed and honored to have had the intense education that came with this course. I discovered in me a new ability to serve others, not only through education but through the power of healing that comes with the use of essential oils. I am continuing to train personally with Alexandria Brighton and have begun work toward opening an aromatherapy practice. Thank you so much for your patience and knowledge. Most of all thank you for this new way of living and enjoying Life."

-A. Lindquist - Advanced Aromatherapy Practitioner

"I am finding the course great. It is written very well so even people like me can understand the human body a whole lot better. I just hope that I can remember it all. I don't think I have a chance of remembering the names of everything in the muscular system or the movement system. But, I do have more of an understanding of how everything works now. I find it just amazing. Thanks Heaps."

-M. Oliver - Basic Anatomy & Physiology

"This information is great that you are teaching. I would really like to talk my oldest daughter into taking your course. It really goes into detail which is very informative."

-Debbie F. - Basic Reflexology

"Seven years ago I started to see a reflexologist for migraines and sinus problems. I was amazed that I finally found relief without medication. I decided this year to search out a course in reflexology so I could help family and friends and show them the benefits of reflexology. I researched various courses on the internet and decided to go with the basic course through the Alternative Healing Academy. I was impressed with course material and the ease of receiving the course material."

"I was given an choice of having a CD sent to me or to receiving and sending back the assignments through email. I choose email. I received 3 lessons at a time that I could read and study on my own time frame and return the lessons when I was done. Everything was sent in a very timely manner and communication was open and quick. If I needed help, I knew it was only a click away and the response time was very quick. The techniques used also came in a video mode in the email that I could replay as much as I needed to."

"I felt I learned a lot and am able to help myself and others. Being able to log 20 hours of treatment time and writing the case histories for the final exam was extremely rewarding and helpful. I would recommend this course to others interested in reflexology because the course material was very informative and complete and written in easy to understand language."

-Jean Russell - Basic Reflexology Course

"I'm so excited about (the Advanced Aromatherapy course) and I'm particularly excited about the possibility of making custom blends for people! I hadn't anticipated having that opportunity when I took the course so I'm excited to have everything done! I'm very excited to have finished. I really enjoyed this course and really appreciate all the work you've put into it! This has been a fabulous jumping off point for me and I'm so glad I took it."

"p.s. I know the boys are much slower at the Reflexology, but my son is loving the classes."
