Pet Glaucoma

What is Glaucoma?

Glaucoma is when the pressure of the fluid or aqueous humor within the eye becomes excessively high. This is a serious eye condition that can affect your pet and cause long term damage if left untreated. As the pressure within the eye increases, pressure is placed on the optic nerve and as a result visual impairment and even blindness can occur. Although the condition can affect both, glaucoma tends to be far more common in dogs than cats.

The symptoms of glaucoma may include the following:

- Severe pain in the eye (while pets cannot tell us about their pain, they may communicate it to us in their behavior. Pain often causes irritability, poor appetite, or lethargy)
- A yellow-green discharge from the eye
- Reddened eye
- Enlargement of the blood vessels of the sclera or whites of the eyes
- Impaired vision
- Clouded cornea or an eye with a bluish tint
- Dilated pupils that don't constrict with light
- During later stages of glaucoma the eye may appear larger or bulging.

What Causes Glaucoma?

The eye constantly produces aqueous humor, (the clear fluid that fills the anterior chamber of the eye) and this aqueous is steadily filtered out of the anterior chamber through a complex drainage system. When this drainage system becomes too slow, or for other reasons, the aqueous builds up in the eye, the eye's intraocular pressure (IOP) increases and pressure is put on the optic nerve and retinal fibers.

Glaucoma can either be primary or secondary. Primary glaucoma is when glaucoma occurs as your pet has a physical predisposition to the condition. For example, drainage pores within the eyes may be too small, or at an awkward angle, making drainage of fluids from the eye difficult. In many cases primary glaucoma is genetic and is commonly seen in certain breeds such as Beagles, Cocker Spaniels, Basset Hounds, Miniature Poodles and Dachshunds.

Secondary glaucoma on the other hand is caused by another condition such as an eye inflammation caused by injury or an eye infection, cataracts, cancer in the eye, lens displacement, or chronic retinal detachment.

Diagnosing Glaucoma

The content of this ebook is intended for informational purposes only.

It is not intended to diagnose or treat any medical condition. Nothing in this ebook is intended to be a substitute for professional medical advice, diagnosis, or treatment. Always seek the advice of your veterinarian or other qualified health provider with any questions you may have regarding a medical condition.

Never disregard professional medical advice or delay in seeking it because of something you have read in this ebook or on ANY website.

If you suspect your pet may have glaucoma then it should be treated as a veterinary emergency. Your vet will measure the intra intraocular pressure (IOP) with a Schiötz tonometer or a Tonopen. Normal IOP readings range between 12 to 22mmHg, and a reading of greater than 30mmHg is generally diagnosed as glaucoma.

Help for Glaucoma

The treatment of glaucoma depends on the severity and the underlying cause of the condition. In many cases, by the time the glaucoma is realized, permanent visual damage has already occurred and the treatment is aimed at saving the unaffected eye. Therefore the sooner the glaucoma is treated, the better the prognosis.

Conventional treatment options include medication or surgery. There are a number of medications that can help to reduce intra intraocular pressure, reduce the amount of aqueous humor produced in the eye, and assist with fluid drainage. These may include topical ointments or oral medications, however it must be noted that medication is usually not a long term solution to the problem, and in many cases, glaucoma is only resolved with surgery.

Surgical procedures will vary depending on the cause and severity. In a procedure known as laser cyclophotocoagulation, a small part of the eye that produces the aqueous humor is destroyed to reduce fluid build up. In cases where the eye is very painful, or visual damage has resulted in blindness, the eye is often removed in a procedure known as enucleation.

Natural Remedies

While natural remedies should not be used in place of conventional treatment for glaucoma, there are a number of herbal and homeopathic remedies that can help prevent the disorder and possibly slow it down.

Burdock is one such help that has excellent eye-cleansing and detoxifying properties and is very beneficial when trying to treat eye infections. Rosemary also comes highly recommended for a number of eye problems as it has strong anti-inflammatory properties as well as the ability to help relieve pain. Chelidonium majus and Meadow Sweet can also be used to help promote healing of the eye and to reduce pain and inflammation.

Tips for glaucoma

- Secondary glaucoma can often be prevented if the underlying cause is noticed and treated swiftly. For this reason, any eye injury, infection or inflammation should be taken seriously and treated as soon as possible.
- Primary glaucoma is not easy to prevent, however, if you know your pet has the predisposition to glaucoma then regular eye check ups will help to pick up early signs of the condition.
- Diabetic pets are more prone to eye problems such as cataracts which can cause glaucoma. It is therefore essential to manage a diabetic pet's glucose levels closely to reduce the chances of eye problems.
- It can be devastating to learn that your pet is losing its sight as a result of glaucoma. Keep in mind that cats and dogs are incredibly adaptable and can live long and happy lives without vision. Unlike humans, animals have an incredibly sensitive sense of smell and impeccable hearing which can make up for the loss of sight.

The Natural Approach

While Western medicine has become the norm in many cultures, it is not the only treatment option. Conventional western medicine, often called allopathic medicine, is the system of medicine taught at most medical schools and most pharmaceutical and synthetic medicines are manufactured and marketed according to the principles of allopathic medicine. Allopathic medicine is also sometimes called orthodox medicine.

Because most of us in the Western world have grown up in a society in which allopathic medicine is the prevailing norm, we forget that, only a few decades ago, homeopathic, herbal and other natural medicines were commonly available – and freely used even by conventional doctors and veterinarians. While there are often heated debates about which system of medicine is ‘better’ than the other, many responsible doctors and vets (whether they are allopathic or not) recognize that both have a role to play in the treatment program.

Just like humans, domesticated animals like dogs and cats are affected by the health hazards of modern living. Pollution, poor nutrition, stress and unhealthy lifestyles can lead to a variety of illnesses and conditions that are very similar to those experienced by humans. In fact, many, if not most pet health concerns can be addressed by helping your pets to live a healthier lifestyle. While it has its place, conventional medicine for animals and 'modern technology' have failed our pets in many ways.

According to pet expert and author CJ Puotinen, most holistic veterinarians and animal health care professions list annual vaccinations and commercial pet foods as the major contributory cause in the rising rates of chronic illness in pets today. Similarly, Juliette de Bairacli Levy, respected author and renowned animal breeder, points out that contrary to the belief that mass vaccination and antibiotic use will contribute to a decrease in disease, the opposite has in fact proved true. Like their human counterparts, today's pets are becoming more and more vulnerable to chronic disease and ill health. This has led many veterinarians to search for alternatives and to espouse more holistic methods of keeping our pets healthy.

"In the wild, animals instinctively seek out healing herbs to help them when they are ill or undernourished. In fact, Asclepius, the ancient Greek god of medicine, respected dogs very highly for their ability to seek out and eat medicinal herbs in the wild. This ability is shared by other animals, including cats. We are coming to realize that nature often has the answers - but animals have always known this! Natural medicine can help your pet just as it can help you. While there is always a place for conventional veterinary medicine, natural medicine can compliment conventional veterinary care and in many cases do just as well. I have applied the same care and research that have gone into our Native Remedies range for adults and children to the development of pet-friendly, safe and effective natural remedies for animals. As always, all remedies are formulated to the highest therapeutic standards and manufactured under strict pharmaceutical conditions for your peace of mind and the well being of your pets. Common Questions Asked About Holistic Health Distance Learning Courses:

What is Certification?

Most schools will offer an exam that tests the student's knowledge of the material taught in the respective course. Upon successful completion of this exam, a Certificate or Diploma will be issued by the school attesting that the student has successfully met the requirements as specified by that school. The only governmental recognition of Aromatherapy in North America is the occupational title designation granted to the BCAA under the Societies Act of British Columbia.

What is a Certified Aromatherapist or Reflexologist?

Most prospective students want to know whether taking our courses will lead to their becoming 'Certified' in that healing modality, thereby leading to the title of Certified Aromatherapist, Certified Reflexologist or Certified Color/Crystal Therapist. The answer to this really depends on what you mean by 'Certified.' We believe it can be misleading to purport that completing a course in a healing modality such as reflexology, aromatherapy or color/crystal therapy will lead to a designation of 'Certified' Therapist. These are not official title designations nor are they ones which are recognized by any country's governmental body. All that these titles mean is that this is what an Individual Instructor, School or Institution decided to put on the Diploma it awards those who successfully complete their course.

What is an accredited course in Aromatherapy or Reflexology?

The answer to this will depend on who you are asking. At the present time, British Columbia is the only government to recognize Aromatherapy as a distinct profession and has granted Occupational Title Protection to the members of the BCAA (British Columbia Alliance of Aromatherapy) with the exclusive right for its members to call themselves Registered Aromatherapists (R.A.).

At this time, neither Reflexology nor Color/Crystal Therapy have such occupational designations in any country although one prominent Reflexology school in Colorado, The Modern Institute of Reflexology, has gained occupational designation for their institution in that state. MIR has been designated by the Colorado State Division of Private Occupational Schools - Dept. of Higher Education as an approved school. Our Reflexologist who developed the reflexology modules for our courses was trained at MIR as a Certified Reflexologist, a Master Reflexologist and a Dr. of Reflexology.

In the United States, the NAHA (National Association for Holistic Aromatherapy) has put into place their Approved Standards for Aromatherapy Training. The Alternative Healing Academy's Advanced Aromatherapy course meets and exceeds these standards and we are in the application process of becoming an approved program through the NAHA.

In Canada, there are a number of different Associations including the BCAPA (British Columbia Association of Practicing Aromatherapists) and the CFA (Canadian Federation of Aromatherapists). Time will tell if one authoritative body or association becomes the standard by which to judge and govern the educational offerings of these alternative healing modalities.

It has to be noted that NO form of aromatherapy "certification" is currently recognized in the USA by anyone other than those in the trade, nor is aromatherapy (or essential oils in the aromatherapy trade) regulated by any governmental body.

Some information about the courses we offer:

1) You can receive the course in one of two ways: A cd with the modules and tests in PDF format can be shipped to you; or, The modules can be emailed to you three at a time. Each time you complete the tests for the current three modules, a new set of three modules will be emailed to you.

2) All modules are clearly explained, are in pdf format and fully illustrated.

3) The Advanced Aromatherapy Practitioner and the Advanced Reflexology Practitioner courses are designed to meet the National Association for Holistic Aromatherapy (NAHA) guidelines.

4) A tutor will be available via email to answer any questions you may have.

You will be contacted after purchase to find out how you would like your course delivered. All tests for the course can be either emailed or snail-mailed to The Alternative Healing Academy.

Upon successful completion of any full diploma or certification course (with a score of 80% or higher), you will receive a beautiful Diploma, suitable for framing.

Course Testimonials

"I'm done! Going through the final and the case studies and having such amazing experiences and opportunities to help people, I truly feel blessed and honored to have had the intense education that came with this course. I discovered in me a new ability to serve others, not only through education but through the power of healing that comes with the use of essential oils. I am continuing to train personally with Alexandria Brighton and have begun work toward opening an aromatherapy practice. Thank you so much for your patience and knowledge. Most of all thank you for this new way of living and enjoying Life."

-A. Lindquist - Advanced Aromatherapy Practitioner

"I am finding the course great. It is written very well so even people like me can understand the human body a whole lot better. I just hope that I can remember it all. I don't think I have a chance of remembering the names of everything in the muscular system or the movement system. But, I do have more of an understanding of how everything works now. I find it just amazing. Thanks Heaps."

-M. Oliver - Basic Anatomy & Physiology

"This information is great that you are teaching. I would really like to talk my oldest daughter into taking your course. It really goes into detail which is very informative."

-Debbie F. - Basic Reflexology

"Seven years ago I started to see a reflexologist for migraines and sinus problems. I was amazed that I finally found relief without medication. I decided this year to search out a course in reflexology so I could help family and friends and show them the benefits of reflexology. I researched various courses on the internet and decided to go with the basic course through the Alternative Healing Academy. I was impressed with course material and the ease of receiving the course material."

"I was given an choice of having a CD sent to me or to receiving and sending back the assignments through email. I choose email. I received 3 lessons at a time that I could read and study on my own time frame and return the lessons when I was done. Everything was sent in a very timely manner and communication was open and quick. If I needed help, I knew it was only a click away and the response time was very quick. The techniques used also came in a video mode in the email that I could replay as much as I needed to."

"I felt I learned a lot and am able to help myself and others. Being able to log 20 hours of treatment time and writing the case histories for the final exam was extremely rewarding and helpful. I would recommend this course to others interested in reflexology because the course material was very informative and complete and written in easy to understand language."

-Jean Russell - Basic Reflexology Course

"I'm so excited about (the Advanced Aromatherapy course) and I'm particularly excited about the possibility of making custom blends for people! I hadn't anticipated having that opportunity when I took the course so I'm excited to have everything done! I'm very excited to have finished. I really enjoyed this course and really appreciate all the work you've put into it! This has been a fabulous jumping off point for me and I'm so glad I took it."

"p.s. I know the boys are much slower at the Reflexology, but my son is loving the classes."
