Pet Grief

What is Grief?

As painful and confusing as grief and bereavement can be for humans, it is similar for pets. Animals form strong bonds and deep attachments with their fellow furry friends and owners, and as a result, the impact of the loss can be quite traumatic. Grieving pets may also become more clingy and not want to be separated from owners or they may search or pine for their dead companions.

What Causes Grief?

When a pet experiences the loss of another animal companion, or human family member, the animal may actually become depressed because he has lost a loved one.

Because animals are perceptive, they often also sense the owner's sorrow and pain.

Diagnosing Grief

You may notice that your dog or cat expresses grief in a physical or psychological manner – they may have stopped eating, distanced themselves from you or other members of the family and lost complete interest in their favorite activities.

Symptoms and signs

The common symptoms and signs of grief in animals include:

- Low energy
- Lethargy
- Lack of interest in activities such as exercise and play
- Poor appetite or loss of appetite
- Weight loss
- Restlessness
- Increase in daytime sleeping
- Insomnia
- Anxiety
- Depression

compassionate. Do not allow the animal to fall into a slump because you may think that he can deal with this grief on his own.

Stay involved by coaxing him to eat, play and exercise and avoid reinforcing or rewarding unwanted behaviors such as picky eating or depression. The length of time spent grieving differs for each pet – like with humans, for some the grief period may last longer than others.

While some dogs or cats adjust and gradually come to terms with their loss, others tend to struggle and find it harder to cope. For pets that are clearly not coping, you need to consult your vet or an animal behaviorist.

When dealing with a grieving animal, the best medicine that is needed is lots of TLC. It is very important that you do not allow the dog or cat to become too dependent on you, as this can often lead to severe separation anxiety or depression. Monitor any physical and behavioral changes carefully. During the mourning period, the animal may not have an appetite and a good idea would be to provide his favorite foods to help him to eat.

Keep routines as normal as possible and continue to encourage exercise and playtimes to keep the pet active and revitalized. Distract the pet with toys, special food treats, other animals or people and take him with you when you go out. Massage, stroke, hold or cuddle your pet, as any form of touch is very soothing and calming.

Very often, grief in pets can lead to severe depression, and your vet may prescribe antidepressants or refer you to an animal behavior psychologist. Keep in mind that while these antidepressants may alleviate the symptoms, they have some negative side effects that may affect your pet's health.

Natural Remedies

Natural and holistic remedies have also been known to have a positive effect on the emotional health and well-being of both humans and pets. Herbal and homeopathic remedies are safe and gentle to use on the body's system without any harmful side effects.

Carefully selected herbs such as Hypericum perforatum (St. John's Wort) and Matricaria recutita (Chamomilla) promote a balanced mood and supports feelings of well-being. Homeopathic ingredients such as Ignatia, Capsicum and Kalium phosphate maintain vitality and emotional health, and support the nervous system.

Tips to Help Your Pet Deal with Grief

There are several things that you can do to help a mourning pet and these include:

- If the pet is mourning the loss of a companion animal or human member of the family, shower him with lots of love and attention but try not to overdo to it as it can lead to separation anxiety.
- Keep routines as normal as possible – feed, exercise and play with the animal at the same times
- Do not reinforce or reward behavioral changes such as picky eating or give

- too much attention to the pet
- Talk to the pet, play music or leave the television on during the day may also be very comforting
- Exercise your pet by encouraging any form of activity to increase energy levels and lift his spirit
- If your pet experiences loss of appetite, give him palatable food or a special concentrated diet that contains all the essential nutrients. Warm the food until just below body temperature and feed him small meals two to four times a day.
- Try and coax the pet to play his favorite game
- Leave toys and food treats out for the pet to find during the course of the day
- Encourage your pet to interact with other animals and people – very often the grieving animal may not respond to you but will interact with a visitor to your home or another animal
- If you have more than one pet, especially in the case of dogs, allow the surviving animals to work out the new pecking order
- Do not rush to get a new pet as a companion for the grieving animal until you or the owner are ready to take on this new responsibility
- Massage and stroke your pet – touch therapy can be very soothing for animals
- Be patient and compassionate, and remember that time does heal all wounds

The Natural Approach

While Western medicine has become the norm in many cultures, it is not the only treatment option. Conventional western medicine, often called allopathic medicine, is the system of medicine taught at most medical schools and most pharmaceutical and synthetic medicines are manufactured and marketed according to the principles of allopathic medicine. Allopathic medicine is also sometimes called orthodox medicine.

Because most of us in the Western world have grown up in a society in which allopathic medicine is the prevailing norm, we forget that, only a few decades ago, homeopathic, herbal and other natural medicines were commonly available – and freely used even by conventional doctors and veterinarians. While there are often heated debates about which system of medicine is 'better' than the other, many responsible doctors and vets (whether they are allopathic or not) recognize that both have a role to play in the treatment program.

Just like humans, domesticated animals like dogs and cats are affected by the health hazards of modern living. Pollution, poor nutrition, stress and unhealthy lifestyles can lead to a variety of illnesses and conditions that are very similar to those experienced by humans. In fact, many, if not most pet health concerns can be addressed by helping your pets to live a healthier lifestyle. While it has its place, conventional medicine for animals and 'modern technology' have failed our pets in many ways.

According to pet expert and author CJ Puotinen, most holistic veterinarians and animal health care professions list annual vaccinations and commercial pet foods as the major contributory cause in the rising rates of chronic illness in pets today. Similarly, Juliette de Bairacli Levy, respected author and renowned animal breeder, points out that contrary to the belief that mass vaccination and antibiotic use will contribute to a decrease in disease, the opposite has in fact proved true.

Like their human counterparts, today's pets are becoming more and more vulnerable to chronic disease and ill health. This has led many veterinarians to search for alternatives and to espouse more holistic methods of keeping our pets healthy.

"In the wild, animals instinctively seek out healing herbs to help them when they are ill or undernourished. In fact, Asclepius, the ancient Greek god of medicine, respected dogs very highly for their ability to seek out and eat medicinal herbs in the wild. This ability is shared by other animals, including cats. We are coming to realize that nature often has the answers - but animals have always known this! Natural medicine can help your pet just as it can help you. While there is always a place for conventional veterinary medicine, natural medicine can compliment conventional veterinary care and in many cases do just as well. I have applied the same care and research that have gone into our Native Remedies range for adults and children to the development of pet-friendly, safe and effective natural remedies for animals. As always, all remedies are formulated to the highest therapeutic standards and manufactured under strict pharmaceutical conditions for your peace of mind and the well being of your pets." Michele Carelse, Clinical Psychologist.

"When a veterinary surgeon practices the use of homeopathic medicine and is asked why he does so, he may give one of several answers. The simple answer would be that the results are good, an emphatic answer would be that homeopathic treatment has no unpleasant or dangerous side effects, while still achieving successful results.

The PetAlive Homeopathic range has been formulated with this knowledge and is specifically designed to treat your pet in a holistic and natural manner."

Common Questions Asked About Holistic Health Distance Learning Courses:

What is Certification?

Most schools will offer an exam that tests the student's knowledge of the material taught in the respective course. Upon successful completion of this exam, a Certificate or Diploma will be issued by the school attesting that the student has successfully met the requirements as specified by that school. The only governmental recognition of Aromatherapy in North America is the occupational title designation granted to the BCAA under the Societies Act of British Columbia.

What is a Certified Aromatherapist or Reflexologist?

Most prospective students want to know whether taking our courses will lead to their becoming 'Certified' in that healing modality, thereby leading to the title of Certified Aromatherapist, Certified Reflexologist or Certified Color/Crystal Therapist. The answer to this really depends on what you mean by 'Certified.' We believe it can be misleading to purport that completing a course in a healing modality such as reflexology, aromatherapy or color/crystal therapy will lead to a designation of 'Certified' Therapist. These are not official title designations nor are they ones which are recognized by any country's governmental body. All that these titles mean is that this is what an Individual Instructor, School or Institution decided to put on the Diploma it awards those who successfully complete their course.

What is an accredited course in Aromatherapy or Reflexology?

The answer to this will depend on who you are asking. At the present time, British Columbia is the only government to recognize Aromatherapy as a distinct profession and has granted Occupational Title Protection to the members of the BCAA (British Columbia Alliance of Aromatherapy) with the exclusive right for its members to call themselves Registered Aromatherapists (R.A.).

At this time, neither Reflexology nor Color/Crystal Therapy have such occupational designations in any country although one prominent Reflexology school in Colorado, The Modern Institute of Reflexology, has gained occupational designation for their institution in that state. MIR has been designated by the Colorado State Division of Private Occupational Schools - Dept. of Higher Education as an approved school. Our Reflexologist who developed the reflexology modules for our courses was trained at MIR as a Certified Reflexologist, a Master Reflexologist and a Dr. of Reflexology.

In the United States, the NAHA (National Association for Holistic Aromatherapy) has put into place their Approved Standards for Aromatherapy Training. The Alternative Healing Academy's Advanced Aromatherapy course meets and exceeds these standards and we are in the application process of becoming an approved program through the NAHA.

In Canada, there are a number of different Associations including the BCAPA (British Columbia Association of Practicing Aromatherapists) and the CFA (Canadian Federation of Aromatherapists). Time will tell if one authoritative body or association becomes the standard by which to judge and govern the educational offerings of these alternative healing modalities.

It has to be noted that NO form of aromatherapy "certification" is currently recognized in the USA by anyone other than those in the trade, nor is aromatherapy (or essential oils in the aromatherapy trade) regulated by any governmental body.

Some information about the courses we offer:

1) You can receive the course in one of two ways: A cd with the modules and tests in PDF format can be shipped to you; or, The modules can be emailed to you three at a time. Each time you complete the tests for the current three modules, a new set of three modules will be emailed to you.

Course Testimonials

"I'm done! Going through the final and the case studies and having such amazing experiences and opportunities to help people, I truly feel blessed and honored to have had the intense education that came with this course. I discovered in me a new ability to serve others, not only through education but through the power of healing that comes with the use of essential oils. I am continuing to train personally with Alexandria Brighton and have begun work toward opening an aromatherapy practice. Thank you so much for your patience and knowledge. Most of all thank you for this new way of living and enjoying Life."

-A. Lindquist - Advanced Aromatherapy Practitioner

"I am finding the course great. It is written very well so even people like me can understand the human body a whole lot better. I just hope that I can remember it all. I don't think I have a chance of remembering the names of everything in the muscular system or the movement system. But, I do have more of an understanding of how everything works now. I find it just amazing. Thanks Heaps."

-M. Oliver - Basic Anatomy & Physiology

"This information is great that you are teaching. I would really like to talk my oldest daughter into taking your course. It really goes into detail which is very informative."

-Debbie F. - Basic Reflexology

"Seven years ago I started to see a reflexologist for migraines and sinus problems. I was amazed that I finally found relief without medication. I decided this year to search out a course in reflexology so I could help family and friends and show them the benefits of reflexology. I researched various courses on the internet and decided to go with the basic course through the Alternative Healing Academy. I was impressed with course material and the ease of receiving the course material."

"I was given an choice of having a CD sent to me or to receiving and sending back the assignments through email. I choose email. I received 3 lessons at a time that I could read and study on my own time frame and return the lessons when I was done. Everything was sent in a very timely manner and communication was open and quick. If I needed help, I knew it was only a click away and the response time was very quick. The techniques used also came in a video mode in the email that I could replay as much as I needed to."

"I felt I learned a lot and am able to help myself and others. Being able to log 20 hours of treatment time and writing the case histories for the final exam was extremely rewarding and helpful. I would recommend this course to others interested in reflexology because the course material was very informative and complete and written in easy to understand language."
