Psoriasis

What is Psoriasis?

Psoriasis is a skin disorder that is characterized by thick, red swollen patches covered with silvery white scales. These patches may often be found on the scalp, face, lower back, elbows, knees, hands, fingernails, toenails and soles of the feet. They may even develop in the inside of the mouth or on the genitals.

This condition causes the skin to itch and may be painful. Psoriasis is a debilitating, chronic disorder that affects the quality of life. There is no cure and people often experience flare-ups and remissions throughout their life. It often also leads to depression, stress and anxiety. Psoriasis affects men and women equally but may be more common amongst Caucasians.

There are different types of psoriasis including:

Plaque psoriasis may be distinguished by raised, red patches covered with silvery white scales. These scales are caused by a buildup of dead scales. This is the most common type of psoriasis and may occur on the scalp, elbows, knees or any other skin surface.

Guttate psoriasis appears as tiny, red dots and the lesions may have some scaling. Guttate psoriasis may occur after a bacterial or viral infection, or certain medications such as salicylic acid has been administered.

Inverse psoriasis is characterized by smooth, red patches without scaling. The affected area becomes irritated because of sweating and rubbing of the skin. This type of psoriasis occurs in the folds of the skin, specifically in the armpits, under the breast or groin.

Pustular psoriasis appears as blisters filled with pus on the skin. These blisters are not infectious and may be found on the hands and feet or may be spread all over the body.

Psoriatic arthritis approximately 10% of patients with psoriasis may develop a form of arthritis called psoriatic arthritis. Redness and swelling may be caused on the elbows, hands, knees, feet, hips and spine. It may result joint pain and stiffness.

Nail psoriasis affects the fingernails and toes causing pits of various size, shape and depth. The nails may turn thick and yellow and crumble easily.

The most common symptoms of psoriasis include:

- Dry, red raised skin patches (plaques) covered with silvery scales usually occurring on the scalp, knees, elbows, hands, nails, feet or lower back

Never disregard professional medical advice or delay in seeking it because of something you have read in this ebook or on ANY website.

- Formation of pustules (skin lesions) causing the skin to crack and become red
- Bleeding in tiny areas of the skin when the scales are picked or scraped off
- Itching
- Nail abnormalities such as yellowish discoloration of fingernails and toenails, tiny pits found in the nails, separation of the end of the nail from the nail bed or a buildup of skin debris under the nails
- Joint pain or aches

Sometimes, burning, itching or discharge from the eyes may occur as well as lesions found on the genitalia.

What Causes Psoriasis?

The exact cause of psoriasis is not known but there are certain factors that may contribute to the development of this condition. It is believed that genetic factors may play a role because about one-third of people who develop psoriasis have one or more family members with this condition. A faulty immune system is also associated with psoriasis because an increased number of white cells are present between the abnormal layers of skin.

Other factors that may worsen psoriasis include:

- Changes in the climate – cold, dry weather makes symptoms worse
- Infections such as strep throat
- Skin injuries
- Stress and anxiety
- Certain medications such as NSAIDs, beta-blockers and lithium

Diagnosing Psoriasis

The diagnosis of psoriasis is based on the appearance of the skin – the thick, red flaky patches characteristic of this condition. Very often doctors find it difficult to diagnose psoriasis because it can look like other skin disorders. To confirm the diagnosis, a skin biopsy or a culture of skin patches may have to be performed.

Help for Psoriasis

Treatment generally depends on the type of psoriasis, age, sex and lifestyle of the person, the severity of the condition and how the person reacts to certain treatments. There are three steps to treating psoriasis and include topical therapy (medications applied to the skin), phototherapy (light therapy) and systemic therapy (medications given as a pill or injection).

Topical treatments are most effective for treating mild to moderate psoriasis and are aimed at reducing swelling and skin cell turnover, helping the skin to peel, unclogging pores and suppressing the immune system. Phototherapy involves the use of natural ultraviolet light and artificial ultraviolet light – it reduces redness and slows the overproduction of skin cells that causes scaling.

If psoriasis is severe, medication in the form of an injection or pill is administered

– this is called systemic treatment. These treatment options may be combined to achieve the best results. Through constant trial and error, the psoriasis sufferer needs to discover the most effective treatment.

Natural remedies

The use of natural and alternative treatments has become increasingly popular among people suffering with psoriasis. Natural treatments such as herbal and homeopathic remedies are a safe and effective alternative to use especially when traditional therapy has failed to produce the desired results. Carefully selected ingredients have been chosen to support skin health and promote healthy cell renewal and routine shedding of old skin cells.

Herbs such as Galium aperiine (Cleavers) and Trifolium pratense (red clover) have a wide of therapeutic benefits which include acting as a cleansing tonic, blood purifier as well as lymphatic cleanser. Tissue salts such as Natrium muriaticum, Kalium sulphate and Kalium muriaticum are excellent for maintaining skin health and supporting the natural healing and regenerative processes of the skin.

Follow these useful tips to help you cope with and manage psoriasis flare-ups

- Eat a well balanced diet which includes fresh fruit and vegetables
- Exercise regularly
- Get enough sleep to allow your body to recuperate
- Keep a diary so that you can track when flare-ups occur and record potential triggers
- Bathe or shower in lukewarm water daily to help your body shed the excess skin accumulating at the psoriatic patches
- Add oatmeal to your bath to soothe and loosen the scales
- Keep your skin moisturized and moist to reduce symptoms of psoriasis and heal inflamed skin
- Reduce stress by practicing relaxation techniques such as yoga, meditation or deep breathing exercises
- Join a support group to seek support and discuss your concerns and issues with other psoriasis sufferers
- Reduce your intake of alcohol as this will help to minimize the symptoms of psoriasis
- Stop smoking because smoking worsens psoriasis

The Natural Approach

While Western medicine has become the norm in many cultures, it is not the only treatment option. Conventional western medicine, often called allopathic medicine, is the system of medicine taught at most medical schools and most pharmaceutical and synthetic medicines are manufactured and marketed according to the principles of allopathic medicine. Allopathic medicine is also sometimes called orthodox medicine.

Because most of us in the Western world have grown up in a society in which allopathic medicine is the prevailing norm, we forget that, only a few decades ago, homeopathic, herbal and other natural medicines were commonly available – and freely used even by conventional doctors. While there are often heated debates about which system of medicine is 'better' than the other, many responsible doctors (whether they are allopathic or not) recognize that both have a role to play in the treatment program.

Natural medicine has often been frowned on by conventional doctors, especially by those who did not have sufficient knowledge of these medicines. However, it is encouraging to note that some medical schools are now beginning to re-introduce it into their course work, thereby providing doctors with a wider range of treatment options from which to choose. In many countries, especially in Europe, India and China, natural and homeopathic medicines are commonly prescribed by conventional doctors and represent a significant part of the total annual drug sales.

Naturopathy is a branch of medicine (just as allopathy is a branch of medicine) which operates according to the underlying philosophy that the body has an innate capacity to heal itself. While natural medicines are often called 'alternative' or 'complimentary' medicines, they are, in fact, a unique and independent form of medicine in their own right, well able to treat a variety of conditions. Perhaps the term 'holistic' medicine is more apt, given the broad range of treatment options and approaches which are to be found within the practice of natural medicine, which encompasses many different disciplines, including herbalism, homeopathy, iridology, osteopathy, chiropractic, therapeutic massage techniques, aromatherapy, acupuncture and many, many more.

Most naturopaths will use a variety of treatment modalities in order to treat their patients in a holistic way to support health, relieve symptoms and prevent future disease. In fact, even the World Health Organization defines health as being "... more than simply the absence of illness. It is the active state of physical, emotional, mental and social well-being." This is a wonderfully clear description of holistic or natural medicine, which strives to support health (thereby relieving or preventing symptoms), rather than simply eliminating disease.

Although allopathic medicine certainly has a role to play and has made a tremendous contribution to medical science during the past century, there is a growing perception that it is not the only answer and that, in many cases, holistic medicine can accomplish just as much, if not more – without the risk of side effects, addiction and sacrifice to health so commonly associated with pharmaceutical drugs. Contrary to common perception, and provided that they are manufactured in the correct way, natural medicines can work quickly and safely to promote healing.

In many cases, they can succeed where pharmaceutical drugs have failed. Despite frequent reports that they are 'unproven' and 'untested', the opposite is true. Natural medicines have a long history of usage and there is a wealth of empirical evidence to support their effectiveness and safety. In addition, active clinical research is carried out by many academic hospitals and universities to support the extensive traditional and empirical evidence behind natural medicines.

It is also important to know that, like any medicine, herbal and homeopathic medicines must be manufactured in the correct way, following acceptable procedures and manufacturing methods to ensure maximum effectiveness and safety. Due to the recent rise in popularity of natural remedies, many companies have sprung up to take advantage of the market. Unfortunately not all of them are equipped to manufacture to the correct standards, often resulting in a flood of inferior (and sometimes even unsafe) remedies onto the market – and giving natural remedies a bad name.

Even some pharmaceutical companies have rushed to claim their market share by producing so-called 'standardized' extracts of herbs and offering these as superior to the tried and tested methods of naturopathic manufacturing. Nothing could be further from the truth. While 'standardized' extracts may offer benefit of easy consistency of dosage (and cheaper more efficient production lines), they have grave disadvantages. These include an increase in side effects as the medicines produced in this manner lose the natural protective properties of the herbs. In some cases, these side effects have proved fatal – as was seen in the liver toxicity associated with standardized extracts of kava kava, a herb previously safely used for generations without any known side effects.

Most naturopaths recommend what is called the Full Spectrum Method of extraction – which retains the benefits of ALL the active ingredients within the herb as opposed to isolating only one – thereby providing a more complete treatment as well as superior protection against side effects.

Whatever your choice, always choose wisely. Research what is best for you. If you have a chronic or life threatening condition, don't make changes without first discussing them with your doctor in order that your condition may be monitored. Well informed and supportive practitioners will support patients who want to take responsibility for their own health.

Common Questions Asked About Holistic Health Distance Learning Courses:

What is Certification?

Most schools will offer an exam that tests the student's knowledge of the material taught in the respective course. Upon successful completion of this exam, a Certificate or Diploma will be issued by the school attesting that the student has successfully met the requirements as specified by that school. The only governmental recognition of Aromatherapy in North America is the occupational title designation granted to the BCAA under the Societies Act of British Columbia.

What is a Certified Aromatherapist or Reflexologist?

Most prospective students want to know whether taking our courses will lead to their becoming 'Certified' in that healing modality, thereby leading to the title of Certified Aromatherapist, Certified Reflexologist or Certified Color/Crystal Therapist. The answer to this really depends on what you mean by 'Certified.' We believe it can be misleading to purport that completing a course in a healing modality such as reflexology, aromatherapy or color/crystal therapy will lead to a designation of 'Certified' Therapist. These are not official title designations nor are they ones which are recognized by any country's governmental body. All that these titles mean is that this is what an Individual Instructor, School or Institution decided to put on the Diploma it awards those who successfully complete their course.

What is an accredited course in Aromatherapy or Reflexology?

The answer to this will depend on who you are asking. At the present time, British Columbia is the only government to recognize Aromatherapy as a distinct profession and has granted Occupational Title Protection to the members of the BCAA (British Columbia Alliance of Aromatherapy) with the exclusive right for its members to call themselves Registered Aromatherapists (R.A.).

At this time, neither Reflexology nor Color/Crystal Therapy have such occupational designations in any country although one prominent Reflexology school in Colorado, The Modern Institute of Reflexology, has gained occupational designation for their institution in that state. MIR has been designated by the Colorado State Division of Private Occupational Schools - Dept. of Higher Education as an approved school. Our Reflexologist who developed the reflexology modules for our courses was trained at MIR as a Certified Reflexologist, a Master Reflexologist and a Dr. of Reflexology.

In the United States, the NAHA (National Association for Holistic Aromatherapy) has put into place their Approved Standards for Aromatherapy Training. The Alternative Healing Academy's Advanced Aromatherapy course meets and exceeds these standards and we are in the application process of becoming an approved program through the NAHA.

In Canada, there are a number of different Associations including the BCAPA (British Columbia Association of Practicing Aromatherapists) and the CFA (Canadian Federation of Aromatherapists). Time will tell if one authoritative body or association becomes the standard by which to judge and govern the educational offerings of these alternative healing modalities.

It has to be noted that NO form of aromatherapy "certification" is currently recognized in the USA by anyone other than those in the trade, nor is aromatherapy (or essential oils in the aromatherapy trade) regulated by any governmental body.

Some information about the courses we offer:

1) You can receive the course in one of two ways: A cd with the modules and tests in PDF format can be shipped to you; or, The modules can be emailed to you three at a time. Each time you complete the tests for the current three modules, a new set of three modules will be emailed to you.

2) All modules are clearly explained, are in pdf format and fully illustrated.

3) The Advanced Aromatherapy Practitioner and the Advanced Reflexology Practitioner courses are designed to meet the National Association for Holistic Aromatherapy (NAHA) guidelines.

4) A tutor will be available via email to answer any questions you may have.

You will be contacted after purchase to find out how you would like your course delivered. All tests for the course can be either emailed or snail-mailed to The Alternative Healing Academy.

Upon successful completion of any full diploma or certification course (with a score of 80% or higher), you will receive a beautiful Diploma, suitable for framing.

Course Testimonials

"I'm done! Going through the final and the case studies and having such amazing experiences and opportunities to help people, I truly feel blessed and honored to have had the intense education that came with this course. I discovered in me a new ability to serve others, not only through education but through the power of healing that comes with the use of essential oils. I am continuing to train personally with Alexandria Brighton and have begun work toward opening an aromatherapy practice. Thank you so much for your patience and knowledge. Most of all thank you for this new way of living and enjoying Life."

-A. Lindquist - Advanced Aromatherapy Practitioner

"I am finding the course great. It is written very well so even people like me can understand the human body a whole lot better. I just hope that I can remember it all. I don't think I have a chance of remembering the names of everything in the muscular system or the movement system. But, I do have more of an understanding of how everything works now. I find it just amazing. Thanks Heaps."

-M. Oliver - Basic Anatomy & Physiology

"This information is great that you are teaching. I would really like to talk my oldest daughter into taking your course. It really goes into detail which is very informative."

-Debbie F. - Basic Reflexology

"Seven years ago I started to see a reflexologist for migraines and sinus problems. I was amazed that I finally found relief without medication. I decided this year to search out a course in reflexology so I could help family and friends and show them the benefits of reflexology. I researched various courses on the internet and decided to go with the basic course through the Alternative Healing Academy. I was impressed with course material and the ease of receiving the course material."

"I was given an choice of having a CD sent to me or to receiving and sending back the assignments through email. I choose email. I received 3 lessons at a time that I could read and study on my own time frame and return the lessons when I was done. Everything was sent in a very timely manner and communication was open and quick. If I needed help, I knew it was only a click away and the response time was very quick. The techniques used also came in a video mode in the email that I could replay as much as I needed to."

"I felt I learned a lot and am able to help myself and others. Being able to log 20 hours of treatment time and writing the case histories for the final exam was extremely rewarding and helpful. I would recommend this course to others interested in reflexology because the course material was very informative and complete and written in easy to understand language."

-Jean Russell - Basic Reflexology Course

"I'm so excited about (the Advanced Aromatherapy course) and I'm particularly excited about the possibility of making custom blends for people! I hadn't anticipated having that opportunity when I took the course so I'm excited to have everything done! I'm very excited to have finished. I really enjoyed this course and really appreciate all the work you've put into it! This has been a fabulous jumping off point for me and I'm so glad I took it."

"p.s. I know the boys are much slower at the Reflexology, but my son is loving the classes."
