Sleep Apnea

What is Sleep Apnea?

Sleep apnea is a condition characterized by episodes in which breathing stops during sleep. These episodes of stopped breathing usually last for 10 seconds or more, sometimes more than 300 times a night. This condition is potentially life threatening causing significant social and emotional problems, and hampering day to day living. People with sleep apnea will awaken partially as they struggle to breathe, but in the morning will be unaware of any sleep disturbances ever occurring.

There are two main types of sleep apnea – obstructive sleep apnea and central sleep apnea.

Obstructive sleep apnea: is the most common type of sleep apnea and is caused by the relaxation of soft tissue in the back of the throat that obstructs the airway passage. When you try to breathe, there isn't sufficient air as a result of the blockage. The blockage may be due to your windpipe being blocked by your tongue, tonsils, uvula or the fatty tissue in your throat.

Central sleep apnea: is a rare type of sleep apnea that is associated with the function of the central nervous system. It occurs when the area of the brain that controls your breathing does not send the correct signals to the breathing muscles. This means that there is no effort to breathe at all for brief periods. With central apnea, snoring does not usually occur.

It is estimated that sleep apnea affects more than 12 million Americans. It is more common in men (over 40 years old) than women, and in people who are overweight or obese.

Additional medical problems associated with untreated sleep apnea include hypertension, coronary artery disease, myocardial infarction, stroke, psychiatric problems, impotence, cognitive dysfunction, memory loss, and death.

Diagnosing Sleep Apnea

The diagnosis of sleep apnea is based on a complete medical history and symptoms of the individual. Your physician may also ask you a series of questions pertaining to sleep quality, daytime sleepiness and bedtime habits. A thorough physical examination of the mouth, neck and throat (oropharynx) is performed to detect for any abnormalities.

Certain tests may also be performed and they include:

- Polysomnography test that records a variety of body functions during sleep such as the electrical activity of the brain, eye movement, muscle activity, heart rate, respiration effort, air flow, and blood oxygen levels. It is used both to diagnose sleep apnea and to determine its severity
- The Multiple Sleep Latency Test (MSLT) measures the speed of falling asleep
- ECG to show arrhythmias during sleep
- Arterial blood gases to show low oxygen or elevated carbon dioxide
- Echocardiogram to evaluate the function of the heart
- Thyroid function studies

Usually people suffering from sleep apnea will have a combination of obstructive sleep apnea and central sleep apnea. The person who has obstructive sleep apnea does not remember the episodes of apnea during the night. It is generally, family members, particularly spouses who witness the periods of apnea.

Symptoms include:

- Excessive daytime sleepiness
- Loud snoring
- Periods of silence (not breathing) followed by gasps
- Restless sleep
- Falling asleep during the day and at inappropriate times
- Morning headaches
- Trouble concentrating and limited attention
- Recent weight gain
- Low Libido
- Irritability
- Memory loss
- Fatigue
- Poor judgment
- Mood or behavior changes
- Anxiety
- Depression

Additional symptoms that may be associated with this disorder include:

- Hyperactivity, especially in children
- Automatic behavior (performing actions by rote)
- High blood pressure
- Leg swelling (if severe)

What Causes Sleep Apnea?

Sleep apnea occurs when air struggles to pass into your lungs while you are sleeping. Under normal conditions, the upper part of your throat muscles keeps this passage open to allow air to flow into your lungs. During sleep, these muscles usually relax but the passage stays open enough to allow air to flow through.

In addition, she is a trained Clinical Psychologist and has been incorporating natural remedies into her treatment of patients with depression, anxiety, ADD, ADHD and stress for many years with spectacular results.

Some people, however, have a narrower passage and during sleep, relaxation of these muscles causes the passage to close. As a result, air cannot pass through into the lungs and loud snoring and labored breathing occurs. When the airway is obstructed completely, air fails to reach the lungs.

Help for Sleep Apnea

Depending on the medical history of an individual and the severity of the disorder, there are a variety of treatment options available. A few simple lifestyle changes can also make a huge difference. Firstly, eating a balanced diet and exercising regularly is very important as they both promote healthier sleeping patterns.

Learning to manage your weight and losing weight may relieve the symptoms of sleep apnea in some people. Avoiding alcohol and medications such as sedatives and muscle relaxants as well as quitting smoking will help to control sleep apnea. Pillows and devices specifically designed to prevent people from sleeping on their backs may also be of benefit to some.

For more extreme cases of sleep apnea, continuous positive airway pressure (CPAP) is one of the most popular methods prescribed. It is a form of mechanical breathing assistance that involves the use of a mask worn over the nose or nose and mouth at night that blows pressurized air through the airway to keep it open.

In addition, surgical procedures may be performed to remove enlarged tonsils or adenoids (tonsillectomy) or excess tissue at the back of the throat (uvulopalatopharyngoplasty or UPPP).

Natural and holistic approaches are also excellent treatment methods for providing relief of sleep apnea. More and more people are exploring natural remedies and declining the use of allopathic medicines. Treatments such as herbal and homeopathic remedies help to improve symptoms but also address the individual's overall physical, mental and emotional wellbeing. Certain herbs such as Avena sativa, Scutellaria laterifolia and Passiflora incarnata can safely be taken to treat chronic sleep problems and maintain healthy sleep patterns. In addition, a combination of herbs and sleep facilitating nutrients such as Hypericum perforatum, Schizandra chinensis, Calcium lactate, Magnesium lactate and Vitamin B6 treats the underlying causes of sleep problems, balances serotonin levels naturally and induces a regular, satisfying sleep.

Tips to help you cope with sleep apnea

- There are some helpful guidelines that can be followed to manage sleep apnea more effectively:
- Establish and maintain regular bedtime and wake-up time patterns
- Eat a healthy balanced diet packed with fresh fruit and vegetables
- Exercise regularly by walking, jogging, swimming or going to gym
- Determine how much sleep you need to feel constantly awake and recharged - this can be done by keeping a sleep journal
- Improve your sleeping position by lying on your side
- Practice relaxation techniques such as meditation, yoga or visualization to reduce stress and anxiety
- Spend time outdoors after waking as this regulates the body's biological

The Natural Approach

While Western medicine has become the norm in many cultures, it is not the only treatment option. Conventional western medicine, often called allopathic medicine, is the system of medicine taught at most medical schools and most pharmaceutical and synthetic medicines are manufactured and marketed according to the principles of allopathic medicine. Allopathic medicine is also sometimes called orthodox medicine.

Because most of us in the Western world have grown up in a society in which allopathic medicine is the prevailing norm, we forget that, only a few decades ago, homeopathic, herbal and other natural medicines were commonly available – and freely used even by conventional doctors. While there are often heated debates about which system of medicine is ‘better’ than the other, many responsible doctors (whether they are allopathic or not) recognize that both have a role to play in the treatment program.

Natural medicine has often been frowned on by conventional doctors, especially by those who did not have sufficient knowledge of these medicines. However, it is encouraging to note that some medical schools are now beginning to re-introduce it into their course work, thereby providing doctors with a wider range of treatment options from which to choose. In many countries, especially in Europe, India and China, natural and homeopathic medicines are commonly prescribed by conventional doctors and represent a significant part of the total annual drug sales.

Naturopathy is a branch of medicine (just as allopathy is a branch of medicine) which operates according to the underlying philosophy that the body has an innate capacity to heal itself. While natural medicines are often called ‘alternative’ or ‘complimentary’ medicines, they are, in fact, a unique and independent form of medicine in their own right, well able to treat a variety of conditions. Perhaps the term ‘holistic’ medicine is more apt, given the broad range of treatment options and approaches which are to be found within the practice of natural medicine, which encompasses many different disciplines, including herbalism, homeopathy, iridology, osteopathy, chiropractic, therapeutic massage techniques, aromatherapy, acupuncture and many, many more.

Most naturopaths will use a variety of treatment modalities in order to treat their patients in a holistic way to support health, relieve symptoms and prevent future disease. In fact, even the World Health Organization defines health as being "... more than simply the absence of illness. It is the active state of physical, emotional, mental and social well-being." This is a wonderfully clear description of holistic or natural medicine, which strives to support health (thereby relieving or preventing symptoms), rather than simply eliminating disease.

Although allopathic medicine certainly has a role to play and has made a tremendous contribution to medical science during the past century, there is a growing perception that it is not the only answer and that, in many cases, holistic medicine can accomplish just as much, if not more – without the risk of side effects, addiction and sacrifice to health so commonly associated with pharmaceutical drugs. Contrary to common perception, and provided that they are manufactured in the correct way, natural medicines can work quickly and safely to promote healing.

In many cases, they can succeed where pharmaceutical drugs have failed. Despite frequent reports that they are ‘unproven’ and ‘untested’, the opposite is true. Natural medicines have a long history of usage and there is a wealth of empirical evidence to support their effectiveness and safety. In addition, active clinical research is carried out by many academic hospitals and universities to support the extensive traditional and empirical evidence behind natural medicines.

It is also important to know that, like any medicine, herbal and homeopathic medicines must be manufactured in the correct way, following acceptable procedures and manufacturing methods to ensure maximum effectiveness and safety. Due to the recent rise in popularity of natural remedies, many companies have sprung up to take advantage of the market. Unfortunately not all of them are equipped to manufacture to the correct standards, often resulting in a flood of inferior (and sometimes even unsafe) remedies onto the market – and giving natural remedies a bad name.

Even some pharmaceutical companies have rushed to claim their market share by producing so-called ‘standardized’ extracts of herbs and offering these as superior to the tried and tested methods of naturopathic manufacturing. Nothing could be further from the truth. While ‘standardized’ extracts may offer benefit of easy consistency of dosage (and cheaper more efficient production lines), they have grave disadvantages. These include an increase in side effects as the medicines produced in this manner lose the natural protective properties of the herbs. In some cases, these side effects have proved fatal – as was seen in the liver toxicity associated with standardized extracts of kava kava, a herb previously safely used for generations without any known side effects.

Most naturopaths recommend what is called the Full Spectrum Method of extraction – which retains the benefits of ALL the active ingredients within the herb as opposed to isolating only one – thereby providing a more complete treatment as well as superior protection against side effects.

Whatever your choice, always choose wisely. Research what is best for you. If you have a chronic or life threatening condition, don’t make changes without first discussing them with your doctor in order that your condition may be monitored. Well informed and supportive practitioners will support patients who want to take responsibility for their own health.

Sleep Tonic: To promote healthy sleep patterns

Sleep Tonic is a remedy containing a combination of three, cellular-supporting tissue salts especially selected for their effect on brain and nervous system health. This combination of tissue salts can be used regularly in a general capacity to promote systemic balance in the brain and nervous system, as well as in conjunction with other remedies to maintain therapeutic effectiveness.

Tissue salts, also called cell salts or biochemic salts, are composed of minerals which occur naturally at a cellular level in our bodies and all organic matter on earth, such as plants, rocks and soil. Just like the bricks and mortar of a wall, tissue salts are the building blocks for cells. All in all, twelve tissue salts have been identified as being essential components of all body cells and without which, true health is not possible. Each tissue salt plays a different, yet vital role in maintaining cellular health in all the organs and systems of the body.

Sustaining the correct balance of tissue salts in the body is similar to the structural engineer laying good foundations when building a house. This process of tissue salt balance, called Biochemistry, was first explored by Dr. Scheussler, a prominent 19th Century German physician. Dr. Scheussler discovered that, when reduced to ashes, each human cell contained 12 minerals or biochemic tissue salts. He believed that these minerals should be present in all living cells (and in perfect balance) to support good health and well-being. This knowledge is still highly respected today and practiced by Homeopaths and Naturopaths all over the world.

Common Questions Asked About Holistic Health Distance Learning Courses:

What is Certification?

Most schools will offer an exam that tests the student's knowledge of the material taught in the respective course. Upon successful completion of this exam, a Certificate or Diploma will be issued by the school attesting that the student has successfully met the requirements as specified by that school. The only governmental recognition of Aromatherapy in North America is the occupational title designation granted to the BCAA under the Societies Act of British Columbia.

What is a Certified Aromatherapist or Reflexologist?

Most prospective students want to know whether taking our courses will lead to their becoming 'Certified' in that healing modality, thereby leading to the title of Certified Aromatherapist, Certified Reflexologist or Certified Color/Crystal Therapist. The answer to this really depends on what you mean by 'Certified.' We believe it can be misleading to purport that completing a course in a healing modality such as reflexology, aromatherapy or color/crystal therapy will lead to a designation of 'Certified' Therapist. These are not official title designations nor are they ones which are recognized by any country's governmental body. All that these titles mean is that this is what an Individual Instructor, School or Institution decided to put on the Diploma it awards those who successfully complete their course.

What is an accredited course in Aromatherapy or Reflexology?

The answer to this will depend on who you are asking. At the present time, British Columbia is the only government to recognize Aromatherapy as a distinct profession and has granted Occupational Title Protection to the members of the BCAA (British Columbia Alliance of Aromatherapy) with the exclusive right for its members to call themselves Registered Aromatherapists (R.A.).

At this time, neither Reflexology nor Color/Crystal Therapy have such occupational designations in any country although one prominent Reflexology school in Colorado, The Modern Institute of Reflexology, has gained occupational designation for their institution in that state. MIR has been designated by the Colorado State Division of Private Occupational Schools - Dept. of Higher Education as an approved school. Our Reflexologist who developed the reflexology modules for our courses was trained at MIR as a Certified Reflexologist, a Master Reflexologist and a Dr. of Reflexology.

In the United States, the NAHA (National Association for Holistic Aromatherapy) has put into place their Approved Standards for Aromatherapy Training. The Alternative Healing Academy's Advanced Aromatherapy course meets and exceeds these standards and we are in the application process of becoming an approved program through the NAHA.

In Canada, there are a number of different Associations including the BCAPA (British Columbia Association of Practicing Aromatherapists) and the CFA (Canadian Federation of Aromatherapists). Time will tell if one authoritative body or association becomes the standard by which to judge and govern the educational offerings of these alternative healing modalities.

It has to be noted that NO form of aromatherapy "certification" is currently recognized in the USA by anyone other than those in the trade, nor is aromatherapy (or essential oils in the aromatherapy trade) regulated by any governmental body.

Some information about the courses we offer:

1) You can receive the course in one of two ways: A cd with the modules and tests in PDF format can be shipped to you; or, The modules can be emailed to you three at a time. Each time you complete the tests for the current three modules, a new set of three modules will be emailed to you.

2) All modules are clearly explained, are in pdf format and fully illustrated.

3) The Advanced Aromatherapy Practitioner and the Advanced Reflexology Practitioner courses are designed to meet the National Association for Holistic Aromatherapy (NAHA) guidelines.

4) A tutor will be available via email to answer any questions you may have.

You will be contacted after purchase to find out how you would like your course delivered. All tests for the course can be either emailed or snail-mailed to The Alternative Healing Academy.

Upon successful completion of any full diploma or certification course (with a score of 80% or higher), you will receive a beautiful Diploma, suitable for framing.

Course Testimonials

"I'm done! Going through the final and the case studies and having such amazing experiences and opportunities to help people, I truly feel blessed and honored to have had the intense education that came with this course. I discovered in me a new ability to serve others, not only through education but through the power of healing that comes with the use of essential oils. I am continuing to train personally with Alexandria Brighton and have begun work toward opening an aromatherapy practice. Thank you so much for your patience and knowledge. Most of all thank you for this new way of living and enjoying Life."

-A. Lindquist - Advanced Aromatherapy Practitioner

"I am finding the course great. It is written very well so even people like me can understand the human body a whole lot better. I just hope that I can remember it all. I don't think I have a chance of remembering the names of everything in the muscular system or the movement system. But, I do have more of an understanding of how everything works now. I find it just amazing. Thanks Heaps."

-M. Oliver - Basic Anatomy & Physiology

"This information is great that you are teaching. I would really like to talk my oldest daughter into taking your course. It really goes into detail which is very informative."

-Debbie F. - Basic Reflexology

"Seven years ago I started to see a reflexologist for migraines and sinus problems. I was amazed that I finally found relief without medication. I decided this year to search out a course in reflexology so I could help family and friends and show them the benefits of reflexology. I researched various courses on the internet and decided to go with the basic course through the Alternative Healing Academy. I was impressed with course material and the ease of receiving the course material."

"I was given an choice of having a CD sent to me or to receiving and sending back the assignments through email. I choose email. I received 3 lessons at a time that I could read and study on my own time frame and return the lessons when I was done. Everything was sent in a very timely manner and communication was open and quick. If I needed help, I knew it was only a click away and the response time was very quick. The techniques used also came in a video mode in the email that I could replay as much as I needed to."

"I felt I learned a lot and am able to help myself and others. Being able to log 20 hours of treatment time and writing the case histories for the final exam was extremely rewarding and helpful. I would recommend this course to others interested in reflexology because the course material was very informative and complete and written in easy to understand language."

-Jean Russell - Basic Reflexology Course

"I'm so excited about (the Advanced Aromatherapy course) and I'm particularly excited about the possibility of making custom blends for people! I hadn't anticipated having that opportunity when I took the course so I'm excited to have everything done! I'm very excited to have finished. I really enjoyed this course and really appreciate all the work you've put into it! This has been a fabulous jumping off point for me and I'm so glad I took it."

"p.s. I know the boys are much slower at the Reflexology, but my son is loving the classes."
