

Natural Help 4... Stroke

What is a Stroke?

A stroke or cardiovascular accident is a type of cardiovascular condition that affects the blood vessels in charge of supplying blood, vital oxygen, and nutrients to the brain. A stroke occurs when a blood vessel is either blocked by a clot or ruptures.

The blood flow is interrupted, depriving that particular area of the brain of oxygen. Every stroke is different, with signs and symptoms that vary according to the type of stroke, the part of the brain affected, and the size of the damaged area.

Differentiating Between the Types of Strokes

Ischemic Stroke

An ischemic stroke is the most common type of stroke. It occurs when an artery or arteriole carrying blood to a part of the brain is obstructed. If this blood supply is blocked for a few minutes or more, lack of oxygen will cause that part of the brain to stop functioning properly and nerve cells can begin to die off. If blood flow is restored promptly, the damage can be limited or even reversed.

Hemorrhagic Stroke

A hemorrhagic stroke occurs when a blood vessel in the brain ruptures and bleeding into the surrounding tissue occurs. This type of stroke is usually severe and is less common, affecting approximately 10 percent of stroke sufferers. One of the major risk factors of a hemorrhagic stroke is high blood pressure (hypertension), which weakens the walls of the blood vessels, causing them to rupture under pressure.

There are two main subtypes of hemorrhagic strokes - subarachnoid hemorrhage and intracerebral hemorrhage. A subarachnoid hemorrhage occurs as a result of bleeding that takes place in the area around the brain. This is usually due to an aneurysm, a weak spot within a blood vessel's wall. An intracerebral hemorrhage is the more common form of hemorrhagic stroke and is associated with bleeding within the brain tissue itself.

Transient Ischemic Attack (TIA)

Mini stroke is a term often used to describe a transient ischemic attack (TIA), often a warning of a possible impending stroke. A TIA is similar to an ischemic stroke because it results in the sudden loss of function of a particular part of the body, which stems from the sudden lack of blood flow to that particular part of the brain.

However, the difference between a TIA and an ischemic stroke is that the TIA symptoms disappear quickly, usually within 24 hours. TIA's are strong indicators that a person is at increased risk of a future stroke.

Diagnosing a Stroke

The diagnosis of a stroke is based on the physical symptoms of the patient as well as medical history. A physical and neurological examination will also be performed. Certain tests such as blood tests and imaging scans such as a CT scan will also be done to determine the area of the brain involved and the severity of the stroke.

What are the Symptoms of a Stroke?

The symptoms of a stroke may come on suddenly such as during sleep, or progress gradually and vary depending on which part of the brain is affected and the size of the area affected. Injury to one side of the brain usually affects the opposite side of the body.

Symptoms may also vary from patient to patient and include the following:

- Sudden numbness or weakness of the face, arm or leg – particularly on one side of the body
- Trouble speaking or understanding
- Poor vision such as blurring, double vision, dimness or blindness in one or both eyes
- Difficulty walking or standing, dizziness, loss of balance or coordination
- A severe headache with no known cause
- Confusion and personality changes, problems with judgment
- Nausea or vomiting
- Drooling as a result of weakened facial muscles and difficulty swallowing

What Causes a Stroke?

As mentioned previously, a stroke occurs when a blood vessel carrying oxygen and nutrients to the brain becomes blocked by a blood clot or some other mass, or when it ruptures. As a result, part of the brain does not get sufficient oxygen and blood. The nerve cells in the affected area are unable to function and die almost immediately because they are deprived of oxygen. When the nerve cells cannot function, the parts of the body they control are also affected and cannot function correctly, either.

The effects of a stroke can be devastating, and the most common problems experienced are:

- Weakness or paralysis in the arms or legs
- Trouble swallowing
- Perceptual problems – changes to the way things are seen
- Sensory problems – changes to way things are felt
- Cognitive problems – problems experienced when thinking or remembering
- Trouble speaking, reading or writing

Help for Stroke Sufferers

Ischemic and hemorrhagic strokes are treated differently, and it is essential they be treated by a physician. Treatment of an ischemic stroke involves removing the blockage and restoring blood flow to the brain. In hemorrhagic strokes, treatment consists of introducing a blockage to prevent further rupture and bleeding.

Medication such as clot-busters (e.g. aspirin) and blood-thinners (e.g. Warfarin) are prescribed. These drugs are very potent, but can have harmful side effects.

Procedures such as a carotid endarterectomy (in which a blood vessel blockage is surgically removed from the carotid artery) may also be performed. Sometimes balloon angioplasty and implantable steel screens called “stents” are used to treat cardiovascular disease to relieve blockages and widen the arteries.

Holistic and natural treatments offer numerous effective methods to reduce your risk of stroke. Treatments involving herbal and homeopathic remedies are gentle and safe to use, while at the same time addressing the underlying causes of the condition.

These remedies contain carefully selected herbs well known for their cardiovascular properties, such as Crataegus oxyacantha (Hawthorn), and Passiflora incarnata, which also relaxes blood vessels and reduces blood pressure.

In addition, Viburnum opulus (Guelder Rose bark) is a very effective cardiac tonic and muscle relaxant, while Ginkgo biloba improves blood flow throughout the body.

Note: People with cardiovascular conditions should always consult their doctors before stopping or adding to their prescription drugs. Remember that it is important to source your natural medicines from a reputable company in order to ensure maximum safety and efficacy.

How to Prevent a Stroke

Recovery and rehabilitation after a stroke is a gradual process. The effects of a stroke will vary from patient to patient. Physical and occupational therapy may be necessary to help the patient regain his or her ability to perform daily tasks.

The best medicine for strokes is prevention:

- Make significant changes to your lifestyle by consulting your doctor during regular check-ups. Your blood pressure and cholesterol levels should be kept under control.
- If you suffer from diabetes or have an irregular heartbeat, you may also be at risk of having another stroke, so it is important to make sure that these conditions are well managed.

- Eat a diet that is low in red meat, fat and salt, and high in fiber-- with plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables.
- Limit your intake of alcohol, although one glass of red wine at night (especially with food) may help to lower cholesterol levels.
- Introduce exercise into your daily routine to regulate your weight and improve circulation - walking, running, cycling or joining a gym.
- Always consult your doctor before beginning a new exercise regimen.
- Avoid smoking, as it increases blood pressure levels and narrows the arteries.
- Learn to manage your stress levels by practicing various relaxation techniques such as meditation, and learn stress management techniques.

The Natural Approach

While Western medicine has become the norm in many cultures, it is not the only treatment option. Conventional Western medicine (often called allopathic or orthodox medicine) is the system of medicine taught at most medical schools, and many pharmaceutical and synthetic medicines are manufactured and marketed according to the principles of allopathic medicine.

Because most of us in the Western world have grown up in a society in which allopathic medicine is the prevailing norm, we forget that only a few decades ago, homeopathic, herbal and other natural medicines were commonly available and freely used-- even by conventional doctors. While there are often heated debates about which system of medicine is 'better' than the other, many responsible doctors (whether they are allopathic or not) recognize that both have a role to play in the treatment program.

Natural medicine has often been frowned upon by conventional doctors, especially by those who do not have sufficient knowledge of these medicines. However, it is encouraging to note that some medical schools are now beginning to re-introduce it into their course work, thereby providing doctors with a wider range of treatment options from which to choose. In many countries, especially in Europe, India and China, natural and homeopathic medicines are commonly prescribed by conventional doctors and represent a significant part of the total annual drug sales.

Naturopathy is a branch of medicine (just as allopathy is a branch of medicine) which operates according to the underlying philosophy that the body has an innate capacity to heal itself. While natural medicines are often called 'alternative' or 'complimentary' medicines, they are, in fact, a unique and independent form of medicine in their own right, well able to treat a variety of conditions. Perhaps the term 'holistic' medicine is more apt, given the broad range of treatment options and approaches which are to be found within the practice of natural medicine. This encompasses many different disciplines, including herbalism, homeopathy, iridology, osteopathy, chiropractic, therapeutic massage techniques, aromatherapy, acupuncture and many, many more.

Most naturopaths will use a variety of treatment modalities in order to treat their patients in a holistic way to support health, relieve symptoms and prevent future disease. In fact, even the World Health Organization defines health as being "... more than simply the absence of illness. It is the active state of physical, emotional, mental and social well-being." This is a wonderfully clear description of holistic or natural medicine, which strives to support health (thereby relieving or preventing symptoms), rather than simply eliminating disease.

Although allopathic medicine certainly has a role to play and has made a tremendous contribution to medical science during the past century, there is a growing perception that it is not the only answer. In many cases, holistic medicine can accomplish just as much, if not more – without the risk of side effects, addiction and sacrifice to health so commonly associated with pharmaceutical drugs. Contrary to common perception, and provided that they are manufactured in the correct way, natural medicines can work quickly and safely to promote healing.

In many cases, they can succeed where pharmaceutical drugs have failed. Despite frequent reports that they are ‘unproven’ and ‘untested’, the opposite is true. Natural medicines have a long history of usage and there is a wealth of empirical evidence to support their effectiveness and safety. In addition, active clinical research is carried out by many academic hospitals and universities to support the extensive traditional and empirical evidence behind natural medicines.

It is also important to know that, like any medicine, herbal and homeopathic medicines must be manufactured in the correct way, following acceptable procedures and manufacturing methods to ensure maximum effectiveness and safety. Due to the recent rise in popularity of natural remedies, many companies have sprung up to take advantage of the market. Unfortunately, not all of them are equipped to manufacture to the correct standards, often resulting in a flood of inferior (and sometimes even unsafe) remedies onto the market – and giving natural remedies a bad name.

Even some pharmaceutical companies have rushed to claim their market share by producing so-called ‘standardized’ extracts of herbs and offering these as superior to the tried and tested methods of naturopathic manufacturing. Nothing could be further from the truth. While ‘standardized’ extracts may offer benefit of easy consistency of dosage (and cheaper more efficient production lines), they have grave disadvantages, including an increase in side effects, as the medicines produced in this manner lose the natural protective properties of the herbs. In some cases, these side effects have proved fatal – as was seen in the liver toxicity associated with standardized extracts of kava kava, a herb previously safely used for generations without any known side effects.

Most naturopaths recommend what is called the Full Spectrum Method of extraction – which retains the benefits of ALL the active ingredients within the herb as opposed to isolating only one – thereby providing a more complete treatment as well as superior protection against side effects.

Whatever your choice, always choose wisely. Research what is best for you. If you have a chronic or life-threatening condition, don’t make changes without first discussing them with your doctor, in order that your condition may be monitored. Well-informed and supportive practitioners will support patients who want to take responsibility for their own health.

Common Questions Asked About Holistic Health Distance Learning Courses:

What is Certification?

Most schools will offer an exam that tests the student's knowledge of the material taught in the respective course. Upon successful completion of this exam, a Certificate or Diploma will be issued by the school attesting that the student has successfully met the requirements as specified by that school. The only governmental recognition of Aromatherapy in North America is the occupational title designation granted to the BCAA under the Societies Act of British Columbia.

What is a Certified Aromatherapist or Reflexologist?

Most prospective students want to know whether taking our courses will lead to their becoming 'Certified' in that healing modality, thereby leading to the title of Certified Aromatherapist, Certified Reflexologist or Certified Color/Crystal Therapist. The answer to this really depends on what you mean by 'Certified.' We believe it can be misleading to purport that completing a course in a healing modality such as reflexology, aromatherapy or color/crystal therapy will lead to a designation of 'Certified' Therapist. These are not official title designations nor are they ones which are recognized by any country's governmental body. All that these titles mean is that this is what an Individual Instructor, School or Institution decided to put on the Diploma it awards those who successfully complete their course.

What is an accredited course in Aromatherapy or Reflexology?

The answer to this will depend on who you are asking. At the present time, British Columbia is the only government to recognize Aromatherapy as a distinct profession and has granted Occupational Title Protection to the members of the BCAA (British Columbia Alliance of Aromatherapy) with the exclusive right for its members to call themselves Registered Aromatherapists (R.A.).

At this time, neither Reflexology nor Color/Crystal Therapy have such occupational designations in any country although one prominent Reflexology school in Colorado, The Modern Institute of Reflexology, has gained occupational designation for their institution in that state. MIR has been designated by the Colorado State Division of Private Occupational Schools - Dept. of Higher Education as an approved school. Our Reflexologist who developed the reflexology modules for our courses was trained at MIR as a Certified Reflexologist, a Master Reflexologist and a Dr. of Reflexology.

In the United States, the NAHA (National Association for Holistic Aromatherapy) has put into place their Approved Standards for Aromatherapy Training. The Alternative Healing Academy's Advanced Aromatherapy course meets and exceeds these standards and we are in the application process of becoming an approved program through the NAHA.

In Canada, there are a number of different Associations including the BCAPA (British Columbia Association of Practicing Aromatherapists) and the CFA (Canadian Federation of Aromatherapists). Time will tell if one authoritative body or association becomes the standard by which to judge and govern the educational offerings of these alternative healing modalities.

It has to be noted that NO form of aromatherapy "certification" is currently recognized in the USA by anyone other than those in the trade, nor is aromatherapy (or essential oils in the aromatherapy trade) regulated by any governmental body.

Some information about the courses we offer:

1) You can receive the course in one of two ways: A cd with the modules and tests in PDF format can be shipped to you; or, The modules can be emailed to you three at a time. Each time you complete the tests for the current three modules, a new set of three modules will be emailed to you.

2) All modules are clearly explained, are in pdf format and fully illustrated.

3) The Advanced Aromatherapy Practitioner and the Advanced Reflexology Practitioner courses are designed to meet the National Association for Holistic Aromatherapy (NAHA) guidelines.

4) A tutor will be available via email to answer any questions you may have.

You will be contacted after purchase to find out how you would like your course delivered. All tests for the course can be either emailed or snail-mailed to The Alternative Healing Academy.

Upon successful completion of any full diploma or certification course (with a score of 80% or higher), you will receive a beautiful Diploma, suitable for framing.

Course Testimonials

"I'm done! Going through the final and the case studies and having such amazing experiences and opportunities to help people, I truly feel blessed and honored to have had the intense education that came with this course. I discovered in me a new ability to serve others, not only through education but through the power of healing that comes with the use of essential oils. I am continuing to train personally with Alexandria Brighton and have begun work toward opening an aromatherapy practice. Thank you so much for your patience and knowledge. Most of all thank you for this new way of living and enjoying Life."

-A. Lindquist - Advanced Aromatherapy Practitioner

"I am finding the course great. It is written very well so even people like me can understand the human body a whole lot better. I just hope that I can remember it all. I don't think I have a chance of remembering the names of everything in the muscular system or the movement system. But, I do have more of an understanding of how everything works now. I find it just amazing. Thanks Heaps."

-M. Oliver - Basic Anatomy & Physiology

"This information is great that you are teaching. I would really like to talk my oldest daughter into taking your course. It really goes into detail which is very informative."

-Debbie F. - Basic Reflexology

"Seven years ago I started to see a reflexologist for migraines and sinus problems. I was amazed that I finally found relief without medication. I decided this year to search out a course in reflexology so I could help family and friends and show them the benefits of reflexology. I researched various courses on the internet and decided to go with the basic course through the Alternative Healing Academy. I was impressed with course material and the ease of receiving the course material."

"I was given an choice of having a CD sent to me or to receiving and sending back the assignments through email. I choose email. I received 3 lessons at a time that I could read and study on my own time frame and return the lessons when I was done. Everything was sent in a very timely manner and communication was open and quick. If I needed help, I knew it was only a click away and the response time was very quick. The techniques used also came in a video mode in the email that I could replay as much as I needed to."

"I felt I learned a lot and am able to help myself and others. Being able to log 20 hours of treatment time and writing the case histories for the final exam was extremely rewarding and helpful. I would recommend this course to others interested in reflexology because the course material was very informative and complete and written in easy to understand language."

-Jean Russell - Basic Reflexology Course

"I'm so excited about (the Advanced Aromatherapy course) and I'm particularly excited about the possibility of making custom blends for people! I hadn't anticipated having that opportunity when I took the course so I'm excited to have everything done! I'm very excited to have finished. I really enjoyed this course and really appreciate all the work you've put into it! This has been a fabulous jumping off point for me and I'm so glad I took it."

"p.s. I know the boys are much slower at the Reflexology, but my son is loving the classes."
