Pet Urination Problems

What are Urination Problems?

Urination problems are common in both dogs and cats. There are many causes and symptoms, as the bladder is a sensitive organ, used to remove toxins and waste from the animal body. Some urination problems are behavior-related (indiscriminate urination from stress, anxiety or behavioral problems) and others result for physical reasons.

Symptoms of urinary problems in dogs and cats include:

- Incontinence (loss of bladder control caused by bladder muscle weakness)
- Frequent dribbling and urinary 'accidents'
- Whimpering during urination (seek your vet's advice)

What Causes Urination Problems?

The accumulation of tartar, plaque and gingivitis may result in the blood vessels of the gums carrying bacteria to the organs in the body, many times, landing in the kidneys resulting in a urinary tract infection. Other causes of urinary problems include Kidney stones and bladder crystals.

You should consult your veterinarian if:

- There is blood or pus in your pet's urine (urine appears red or has strings of blood in it)
- The urine smells very strong and/or is darker
- Your pet is urinating more than usual (a possible indication of Cushing's Disease or Diabetes)
- Your pet is having difficulty urinating
- Your pet tries to urinate but nothing comes out. (Take your pet to the veterinarian immediately as this may be a result of a blocked stone and is common in male cats)
- Your pet urinates more than normal and drinking more water than usual
- Your pet starts suddenly peeing in the house
- Your pet wets wherever he or she has been sitting
- Your pet urinates when he is excited

Diagnosing Urination Problems

Your vet may try extraction of urine using a needle inserted into the bladder. Although this sounds painful for your pet, it is superior to using a urinary catheter, which may introduce bacteria and a spasm of the urethra. Blood tests may be done to rule out infection and crystals.

Help for Urination Problems

Most vets may prescribe broad-spectrum antibiotics if a urinary infection is the cause of bladder problems. Keep in mind that antibiotics can weaken the immune system in the long term.

Natural Remedies

Many natural herbal and homeopathic remedies can help support the bladder. Sabal Serrulata is known to be highly effective in supporting the bladder as well as prostate health in male dogs and cats.

Galium aperine (Cleavers) is particularly effective in supporting the functioning of the urinary tract and bladder. Baryta carb is a homeopathic ingredient effective in supporting prostate gland and urinary tract health.

Tips related to urination problems

- Give your pet fresh water daily (fill the bowl every few hours)
- If you are traveling, give your pet frequent potty breaks
- Taking your dog for a walk gives them ample opportunity to empty their bladders.
- Try not to let your dog drink stagnated water, or from drains.

The Natural Approach

While Western medicine has become the norm in many cultures, it is not the only treatment option. Conventional western medicine, often called allopathic medicine, is the system of medicine taught at most medical schools and most pharmaceutical and synthetic medicines are manufactured and marketed according to the principles of allopathic medicine. Allopathic medicine is also sometimes called orthodox medicine.

Because most of us in the Western world have grown up in a society in which allopathic medicine is the prevailing norm, we forget that, only a few decades ago, homeopathic, herbal and other natural medicines were commonly available – and freely used even by conventional doctors and veterinarians. While there are often heated debates about which system of medicine is ‘better’ than the other, many responsible doctors and vets (whether they are allopathic or not) recognize that both have a role to play in the treatment program.

Just like humans, domesticated animals like dogs and cats are affected by the health hazards of modern living. Pollution, poor nutrition, stress and unhealthy lifestyles can lead to a variety of illnesses and conditions that are very similar to those experienced by humans. In fact, many, if not most pet health concerns can be addressed by helping your pets to live a healthier lifestyle. While it has its place, conventional medicine for animals and 'modern technology' have failed our pets in many ways.

According to pet expert and author CJ Puotinen, most holistic veterinarians and animal health care professions list annual vaccinations and commercial pet foods as the major contributory cause in the rising rates of chronic illness in pets today.

Michele Carelse, Clinical Psychologist

All of our natural remedies are formulated by our expert team of herbalists, naturopaths and homeopaths, and headed by Michele Carelse.

Michele has had years of experience in the manufacturing and use of natural remedies for both people and pets. In addition, she is a trained Clinical Psychologist and has been incorporating natural remedies into her treatment of patients with depression, anxiety, ADD, ADHD and stress for many years with spectacular results.

Similarly, Juliette de Bairacli Levy, respected author and renowned animal breeder, points out that contrary to the belief that mass vaccination and antibiotic use will contribute to a decrease in disease, the opposite has in fact proved true. Like their human counterparts, today's pets are becoming more and more vulnerable to chronic disease and ill health. This has led many veterinarians to search for alternatives and to espouse more holistic methods of keeping our pets healthy.

"In the wild, animals instinctively seek out healing herbs to help them when they are ill or undernourished. In fact, Asclepius, the ancient Greek god of medicine, respected dogs very highly for their ability to seek out and eat medicinal herbs in the wild. This ability is shared by other animals, including cats. We are coming to realize that nature often has the answers - but animals have always known this! Natural medicine can help your pet just as it can help you. While there is always a place for conventional veterinary medicine, natural medicine can compliment conventional veterinary care and in many cases do just as well. I have applied the same care and research that have gone into our Native Remedies range for adults and children to the development of pet-friendly, safe and effective natural remedies for animals. As always, all remedies are formulated to the highest therapeutic standards and manufactured under strict pharmaceutical conditions for your peace of mind and the well being of your pets. " Michele Carelse, Clinical Psychologist.

"When a veterinary surgeon practices the use of homeopathic medicine and is asked why he does so, he may give one of several answers. The simple answer would be that the results are good, an emphatic answer would be that homeopathic treatment has no unpleasant or dangerous side effects, while still achieving successful results.

The PetAlive Homeopathic range has been formulated with this knowledge and is specifically designed to treat your pet in a holistic and natural manner."
